ROOSEVELT DIGS IN FOR WAR ON PARTY'S REBELS

Maps Drive to Save Rejected Plans.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 22.—[Special.]—Down but not out in his first tussle with a congress that has reasserted its independence of executive dictation, President Roosevelt, it was learned today, is planning an early return to the fray.

Thwarted in the realization of nearly all his objectives in the first session of the Seventy-fifth congress but confident he possesses the overwhelming support of the people, Mr. Roosevelt will undertake to drive his recalcitrant party into line for his measures or to drive out of congress those rebels who refuse to surrender.

With ever increasing fury the conflict between the President and the Democrats in revolt against his political, social, and economic philosophy may be expected to rock the country in the period before the next session of congress, throughout the congressional primaries and elections next year, and in the presidential election of 1940.

Personal Prestige Impaired.

As a result of the party split produced by the President's attempt to reduce the Supreme court to subserviency to the executive, the Roosevelt social and economic program became stalled in the session that ended yesterday. Mr. Roosevelt now faces the necessity of making a fresh start under the handicap of impaired personal prestige and party morale.

In a series of "fighting speeches" upon which he embarked at Roanoke Island last week, the President will seek before congress meets again to mobilize public opinion in overwhelming support of the wage and hour bill, crop limitation, government reorganization, and other measures which were sidetracked in the last session as the result of Democratic opposition. Mr. Roosevelt even may take to the stump in person in order to arouse constituencies to put the heat on recalcitrant Democratic senators and representatives to line up for the Roosevelt measures.

Faces Danger of Defeat.

Unless the President succeeds in marshaling such unmistakable public support of his program he will be in danger of sustaining another signal defeat in the next session of congress, in which event he would go into the congressional elections greatly weakened politically and threatened with a disastrous setback in his undertaking to control his party in 1940 and renominate himself for a third term or name his successor.

Ever since the death of Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas, Democratic leader of the senate, and the collapse of the scheme to pack the Supreme court, the President has been quietly but effectively purging his counsels of "old line" Democratic leaders.

In place of Robinson, who was too conservative at heart to suit the President, Mr. Roosevelt succeeded in getting Senator Alben Barkley of Kentucky, an ardent supporter of Roosevelt policies. Vice President Garner, who carried out the terms of the Roosevelt surrender on the court bill and who influenced the shelving of other Roosevelt measures, found himself omitted from White House conferences.

Radical Group Emerges.

In place of the conservative Democratic wheelhorses Mr. Roosevelt was observed to be calling in a group of radical "young Turks," headed by Senators Sherman Minton of Indiana, Lewis B. Schwellenbach of Washington, and Hugo L. Black of Alabama, whom the President has just elevated to the Supreme court.

There are signs, likewise, of a rift on tactics between the President and his political generalissimo, Postmaster General James A. Farley. At all events, the President and genial Jim appear to be working at cross purposes. The Democratic national chairman, who counts that day lost whose low descending sun looks not upon his dedication of a new postoffice, is making daily speeches, turned out wholesale by Charley Michelson and other ghost writers of the national committee, in all of which Mr. Farley asseverates that there is no breach in the Democratic party and that there will be no reprisals upon the Demo-

Murdered Man's Widow Faces Rival

Story of Moonlight Slaying Sifted.

Two women, one a pretty young blonde and the other a comely matron, faced each other for a few seconds yesterday at the detective bureau where they were questioned following the moonlight murder of Robert F. Burns while he was strolling in Grant park with the younger woman—his sweetheart—early yesterday.

The women were rivals for his affection. The blonde is Miss Lucille Buehler, 21 years old, with whom he had been carrying on a clandestine affair. The matron is Mrs. Theresa Burns, about 36, the slain man's widow. Miss Buehler, wearing a low cut, black velvet evening gown, and Mrs. Burns, dressed in a simple traveling suit, glanced at each other briefly, but searchingly. Then they turned their heads and passed into separate offices. Neither spoke.

Take Full Statements.

Last night police had taken full statements from both women, but were admittedly as far away from a solution of Burns' murder as they were at 2:30 a. m. yesterday when the shooting occurred. They had numerous theories, but few clews.

Burns, who was 40 years old, lived at 5921 North Paulina street, and was co-owner of a prosperous meat market in Evanston. He was shot in the back of the head by one of two mysterious assassins during a stroll with Miss Buehler in the park, near Madison street just east of Michigan avenue. When police arrived he lay dying in Miss Buehler's arms and she was sobbing, "My Bobby, my Bobby!" He died in St. Luke's hospital an hour later.

Find Mystery Remains.

The shooting was the work of bandits, according to Miss Buehler's account. There was some evidence to support this theory, police said last night, but they added that several other circumstances remained to be explained.

These pointed to a motive of love vengeance. Perhaps the slayers were avenging a rival who had lost Miss Buehler's affections to Burns, police reasoned. But the girl emphatically denied any such possibility.

Miss Buehler was hysterical hours after the shooting, and refused to give much information about herself, although she talked freely about the shooting. At first she gave her name as Grace Schneider, then Snyder, and finally, under questioning by Assistant State's Attorney Samuel Papanek and others, she gave her true name.

Neighbor of Slain Model.

Miss Buehler lives at the La Salle Tower apartments, 1211 North La Salle street, which was the scene last year of the unsolved murder of Audrey Vallette, model.

"I loved Bobby and he loved me," Miss Buehler told police, "but I never knew that he was married. We were walking in Grant park, talking about our plans to marry, when suddenly two men stepped up to us. I don't remember much of what happened except that one of the men slapped me and the other shot Bobby."

Miss Buehler at the time was carrying $68 of Burns' money for safekeeping, but the killers made no effort to take this. The two men ran to Michigan avenue, and fled north in a car, according to Jimmie Murphy, an itinerant, who was sleeping in the park and witnessed the shooting. Awakened by the shots—he said he believed there were two—he looked up in time to see the killers run away.

Calls Victim Good Spender.

Miss Buehler said she had known Burns for several months and had found him friendly, and a good spender. She said she cared for him more than any other friend. According to police, Miss Buehler has a dozen or so men acquaintances, some of whom police may try to reach by tracing telephone calls she made from her hotel.

After questioning the sweetheart, Prosecutor Papanek, with Capt. John Prendergast, chief of uniformed

THE BRANDING SEASON

BRITISH STAGE VILLAIN MUST GET A PERMIT TO POINT GUN AT A HERO

[Copyright, 1937, By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Aug. 22.—Scotland Yard today struck hard at gangsters and other villains appearing on the London stage. They were forbidden to brandish pistols or any other weapons in the face of the hero until they obtain a license to possess firearms.

Theater managers confessed they were concerned over the order which is contained in the regulations for enforcement of the new drastic firearms act. The law permits an actor to keep antique firearms as ornaments in his home, but the moment he carries them on the stage he must have a permit.

The definition of firearms for which licenses are required includes shotguns with barrels less than twenty inches in length. Any one who shortens the barrel is liable to severe penalties.

2½ HR. DUEL ENDS WITH SMILES; IT'S RECORD BREAKER

BUDAPEST, Aug. 22.—(AP)—Two duelists smiled as they nursed minor wounds in a hospital here today. They battled with cavalry sabers for two and a half hours until stopped by their seconds. Both were unreconciled and vainly tried to continue. But at the hospital they smiled when told it was the longest duel in Hungarian history. One was Laszlo Zborovjan, city engineer; the other was Andru Prueckler, secretary of the Hungarian Fencing association. As executives of the city sports council they had disagreed on matters concerning minor sports.

AERIAL PIPER OFFERS TO RID TOWN OF BIRDS

Perry, N. Y., Aug. 22.—(AP)—An aerial "pied piper" offered his services tonight to rid this village of sparrows, so citizens can sleep nights.

Russ Brinkley, a pilot and radio entertainer in nearby Olean, wrote Mayor Roy Spellicy he would fly his "flivver" airplane over the sparrows and broadcast fife notes.

"Sure, it's a gag," he admitted tonight, "but I'll go through with it. Who knows? It might work."

"My plan," he told the mayor, "is to attract the sparrows with my piping, lead them out into the country and lose them."

12 Die in Trap as They Battle Forest Flames

Cody, Wyo., Aug. 22.—(AP)—The toll of a wind driven forest fire sweeping through the Absoraka mountains tonight mounted to twelve. They were among the fifty or more firefighters who were trapped and burned. Eight bodies were retrieved from the seared mountain woods today. Three others were found tonight and still two others died in a Cody hospital. About forty others were seriously burned.

Cross indicates location of fire.

Eighteen of the Civilian Conservation corps enrollees and bureau of public roads employés who suffered burns yesterday were brought to Cody hospitals after agonizing trips on pack horses, stretchers, and ambulances. High in the Absoraka mountains of northwestern Wyoming a dozen hastily summoned physicians administered to the others.

Check List of Missing.

While forest service and CCC officials attempted to identify the charred bodies, herses stood nearby to bring the dead to Cody. It was believed that in some cases positive identification would be impossible. Employé and enrollee lists were being checked to determine the missing.

"Some of the CCC boys got excited. They started to run away. Some of us older men forced them to stay on the rock refuge, but some got away."

Those who became panic stricken, their number undetermined, were believed to have been among the fighters who perished.

Davis said some of the men claimed they saw more than eight dead. "Some of the boys said they saw one pile of seven bodies," he said.

Tells of Seeing Seven Die.

Roy Bevens, a CCC worker, told an ambulance driver he saw seven fellow fire fighters perish in the raging flames.

"How lucky I am to be alive," Bevens said.

But Bevens died in the hospital late tonight. Bill Lee of the bureau of public roads is not expected to survive.

A first aid station, with the assistance of six Cody physicians and a score or more nurses, was established at a forest service field camp near the fire.

500 Continue Fight.

While CCC members worked all night with pack horses and stretchers bearing the burned to first aid more than 500 men continued battling the flames.

Reinforcements were rushed to the scene yesterday after the blaze, of undetermined origin and discovered Friday, swept beyond control. This afternoon wind again sent the flames eating through dense timber of the 1,500 acre forest thirty-five miles west of Cody in northwestern Wyoming.

AIR SERVICE BETWEEN N. Y. AND BERMUDA TO BE DOUBLED AT ONCE

New York, Aug. 22.—(AP)—Doubling of the present scheduled flights between New York and Hamilton, Bermuda, to provide four round trips weekly, was announced today by Pan-American Airways and Imperial Airways, flying boat operators.

The recently established air service over the 773 mile ocean route, said the announcement, had drawn such patronage that the equipment being used, the Bermuda Clipper and the Cavalier, will make two round trips each.

The Clipper will leave Port Washington each Wednesday and Friday, returning Thursday and Sunday. The flying boat of the British company, which shares base facilities, radio communications, and weather reporting services with the American concern, will leave Hamilton for New York Monday and Friday, returning Tuesday and Saturday.

Since establishment of the service in June the 26 passenger Clipper and the 20 passenger Cavalier have carried an aggregate of 300 passengers a month.

'No Smoking Till After 50,' Nazi Official Tells Women

[Copyright, 1937, By the New York Times.]

BERLIN, Aug. 22.—Gerhard Wagner, reich medical leader, today warned German women to refrain from smoking until they pass the age of 50. He said smoking may affect their capacity to bear children. He also warned them to let alcohol alone, except in very small quantities.

3d Assault in 2 Days Spurs Moron Drive

While police redoubled their efforts to stop moronic attacks upon Chicago women, the third assault within two days occurred last night. Mrs. Anna Hollander, 50 years old, was beaten and knocked unconscious by a colored man in a prairie a half block from the building at 8153 South Green street where she is employed as a maid.

Mrs. Hollander, who works for Mrs. James Harty, was returning to the apartment when the assault occurred. She had alighted from a Halsted street car at 83d street by mistake, instead of getting off at 82d street, and was walking on the west side of Halsted street.

Seizes and Strikes Her.

The colored man approached her from the prairie and seized and struck her. Mrs. Hollander cried out and told him to take her purse and let her go. Instead the man hit her again, tore her dress and knocked her to the ground unconscious.

Frightened when a motorist drove by, the man fled. Mrs. Hollander was taken to the Little Company of Mary hospital by the motorist and physicians began an examination.

Meanwhile police working on the two other assault cases, one of which ended in murder, rounded up scores of suspects. One of them closely answers the description of the moron in the murder case. Police also ordered a close watch kept at all hours on all hospitals, nurses homes, hotels, and apartment buildings whose sleeping rooms are accessible from the outside. No details will be posted, but patrolmen and squads will make frequent rounds.

Other Victims of Morons.

The victim of the murder was Miss Anne Kuchta, 19 years old, a student nurse at the Chicago hospital, 811 East 49th street. The other victim of an attack was Miss Florence Swanson, 34, superintendent of nurses at the Jefferson Park hospital, 1410 Monroe street. Miss Swanson was dozing on a couch in the nurses' home on Loomis street, adjoining the hospital, early yesterday when a moron stole in and pressed a pillow on her face.

"I'll give you what the others got," he said, and began hacking her with a blade. She was cut on her arms and chest, but struggled until she got the pillow away and screamed.

The moron went to the window, kicked out the screen, and jumped eight feet to the ground. It was believed he had climbed the fire escape to an unlocked window in an upper room and descended to Miss Swanson's room, where the door was ajar, on the first floor.

Hospitals Prepare to Act.

Concerted action by hospitals to guard against further assaults upon nurses was being considered by Dr. Arnold F. Emch, executive director of the Chicago Hospital council.

400 WOUNDED; MANY OF DEAD ARE FOREIGNERS

Projectile Hits U. S. Navy Warehouse.

Battle Near Peiping

TIENTSIN.—Sixty thousand Chinese and Japanese troops engage in battle of Peiping as China begins offensive to recapture lost territories in the Peiping-Tientsin area. Page 2.

SHANGHAI, Aug. 23 [Monday].—(AP)—At least 250 persons were killed today and 400 wounded—many of them foreigners—when a heavy artillery shell crashed into the heart of the crowded International settlement just as noonday crowds were pouring into the streets for lunch.

Police feared the death toll from the single shell would reach 400. An Associated Press correspondent counted more than 200 bodies. Dead and wounded were scattered over Nanking road, Shanghai's busiest shopping district.

2d Shell Fails to Explode.

The shell tore away the entire facade of Sincere & Co.'s great department store and shattered the Wing On & Co., another department store across the road.

A second projectile pierced the United States navy warehouse one block from the Whangpoo river waterfront near the southern border of the settlement. The shell miraculously failed to explode although it crashed through the entire six story building and shattered the concrete floor at the bottom.

New death and destruction was brought to the heart of Shanghai as the Chinese and Japanese armies locked in its borders waged war with renewed fury.

Japs Land 50,000 Troops.

Japanese claimed more than 50,000 reinforcements for their harried troops had been landed in the rear of the Chinese army at Woosung, twelve miles to the north, while their warships lining the Yangtze river hammered at the Chinese fortifications.

The sound of the artillery duel reverberated monotonously throughout the day. It was Shanghai's eleventh day of harrowing war and the northern and eastern sections of the city, as well as the rich industrial suburb of Pootung across the Whangpoo river, were in flames.

So fierce were the raging fires that all land operations in the fringes of the city were virtually suspended. Troops were driven from their positions by the flames.

Call It Mystery Shell.

The exploding shell struck Nanking road about a mile from the famous Shanghai bund, off which the United States cruiser Augusta and other foreign warships are anchored. One seaman was killed Friday and seventeen were wounded when a shell struck the Augusta. A naval board of inquiry today sent its findings, fixing responsibility for the shelling of the Augusta, to the chief of naval operations in Washington.

Naval officials declined to say whether China or Japan had been found responsible but asserted there had been "no hostile intent" in the shelling.

The source of the projectile that brought the war to Shanghai's main thoroughfare was a complete mystery. It could have come from either Chinese or Japanese guns, as both are so implaced along the Whangpoo's banks that, by an unusual twist of the range finders, the batteries of either could have landed a shell in the international settlement.

Many Women in Street.

The shell screeched into the middle of Nanking road just a few minutes after 1 o'clock, when the area could not have been more crowded with business men and shoppers on their way to lunch. The district was filled with foreign women doing emergency shopping to replenish the stocks of food and other essentials used up over the week-end.

The crowds on Nanking road in front of the two great stores were exceptionally heavy as most other exits had been closed since the stores began operating on restricted basis a week ago.

Falling with the momentum of a meteor, the bursting shell turned both packed establishments into charnel houses. The street was thrown into mad panic with thousands of frenzied

Chinese and foreigners fighting to get out of the shell area.

Among the eyewitnesses of the blast was Al G. Huebner of Marinette, Wis., who was within half a block when the shell hit. The explosion shattered the windshield and windows of the automobile in which he was riding.

Squads of American volunteers, serving in the Shanghai defense corps, were among the first on the scene, removing the bodies of dead, aiding the wounded, and rescuing the survivors.

The carnage was horrible. Headless bodies, arms, and legs were scattered in macabre patterns all through the area. Like the new World Emporium, which was struck by a bomb with similar horrors Aug. 14, Sincere's and the Wing On & Co. contain restaurants, roof gardens, and dance halls which are widely patronized by Chinese.

The duel between the warships and Chinese land batteries, twelve miles to the north, continued unabated in midmorning. The artillery battle began at dawn after the troop ships from the Japanese homeland arrived in the estuary of the Yangtze and maneuvered into position for the landing.

Raid Japanese Fleet.

Chinese announced that daring raids into the Japanese fleet in which they used a new type of "sea sled" capable of launching a torpedo had taken a heavy toll.

The Chinese claimed—without confirmation from other sources—that the mysterious raiders had penetrated the Japanese fleet and sunk "several" warships off Woosung.

Deep official secrecy surrounds operations of the "sea sleds," high speed craft supposedly based up the Yangtze, but three months ago an Associated Press correspondent witnessed the arrival of six British-made and six German-made boats for which just such qualities were claimed.

Chinese informants said several raids had been made in the Woosung areas and thrown something like panic into the Japanese fleet, which, according to independent reports, now totals 82 warships of nearly all categories between Shanghai and the open sea.

Huge Fires in Battle Path.

Huge fires, many newly lit yesterday as Chinese and Japanese air forces bombed savagely at enemy positions, continued to burn ravenously through large areas of northern and eastern Shanghai as the battle for this city entered its eleventh day, but the land fronts were relatively quiet.

Japanese acceptance of a protest by American, British, French, and Italian naval commanders late Sunday against Japanese warships operating too close to neutral vessels eased for the time being what threatened to become a dangerous international situation.

Move Ships Downstream.

Vice Admiral Kiyoshi Hasegawa, commanding Japanese naval forces at Shanghai, acceded to the foreign commanders' request that his ships in the Whangpoo be kept below its confluence with Soochow creek, away from the part of the International Settlement where American and British interests center and from the berths of foreign warships.

Rear Admiral Harry E. Yarnell, commander in chief of the United States Asiatic fleet, and his British, French, and Italian colleagues protested against "irresponsible firing" by Japanese warships lying close to their own vessels.

The protest was made on the French admiral's initiative, but it was understood all were anxious to prevent a repetition of the incident Friday when a shell hit the American flagship Augusta and one seaman was killed and seventeen wounded.

Admiral Hasegawa sent his chief of staf to explain to Admiral Yarnell that although "in principle" he must insist that the Japanese warships had as much right off the settlement waterfront as those of other nations, nevertheless he would keep his ships below the Soochow creek bridge.

The Japanese envoy told Admiral Yarnell that Chinese torpedo boats had been using the upper Whangpoo as a base of operations and asked that the American and other admirals make representations to the Chinese on that score. Yarnell indicated his willingness to do so.

Board Investigates Bombing.

Whether it was a Japanese or Chinese shell which struck the Augusta still was not disclosed. A naval board of inquiry studied the problem aboard the flagship Saturday, but its findings will be announced only in Washington, D. C. The body of the slain sailor, Freddie John Falgout, was prepared to be taken to his home in Raceland, La.

Sunday brought no respite in Shanghai's tale of horrors. Chinese and Japanese bombers both blasted parts of Hongkew, China's largest industrial district, and set many new fires.

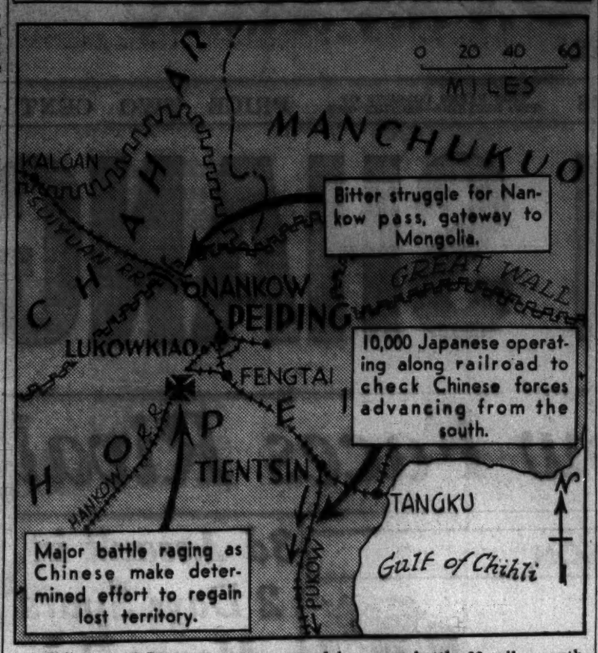
The million dollar plant of the American owned Henningsen company, largest makers of candy and ice cream in China, was destroyed. First it was bombed by Chinese planes trying to hit Japanese positions in Yangtzepoo, the easternmost section of the international settlement. Flames soon completed the destruction.

All day belligerents continued their big gun duelling along the Whangpoo, Japanese warships on the river exchanging tons of shells with Chinese batteries in Pootung, industrial region across the river from Shanghai, and points south of Shanghai.

The Japanese claimed they had killed 350 Chinese soldiers and captured four tanks in Yangtzepoo, while the Chinese asserted they had pushed back the Japanese lines and killed many enemy marines.

The eastern district — including Yangtzepoo and Hongkew—was the scene of a unique "jail break," as 1,000 convicts, including murderers, narcotic addicts, and other felons were set free.

NEW BATTLE RAGES IN NORTH CHINA



Chinese and Japanese were engaged in a new battle 30 miles southwest of Peiping yesterday as the Chinese fought to regain lost territories in north Hopei province. Thirty thousand men fought on each side. Rains hindered Japanese in their battle to wrest Nankow pass from the Chinese northwest of Peiping. A third Japanese force moved southward from Tientsin to meet advancing Chinese.

1,060 MORE REFUGEES FROM SHANGHAI WAR ARRIVE AT MANILA

MANILA, P. I., Aug. 23.—[Monday.]—(AP)—New refugees from wartorn Shanghai poured into Manila today.

The liner Victoria docked this morning with 60 Italian refugees and the American liner President Hoover arrived off the breakwater bearing more than 1,000 persons, mostly Americans, evacuated from the embattled city. Italian consular authorities were to care for their countrymen.

Chicago Marines Await Sailing Orders to China

Chicago marines who are among the 1,200 ordered to China from the San Diego, Cal., base are daily expecting sailing orders, according to dispatches from the west coast yesterday. The force will be sent to Shanghai to protect American interests there during the present conflict between China and Japan. A large number of the marines at San Diego were sent there through the Chicago office, and it is estimated that about 50 of them are residents of Chicago.

Chicago Convict Escapes from Prison Honor Farm

Ray Shubert, 42 years old, escaped yesterday from the honor farm at Stateville penitentiary, Joliet, where he was serving a term of one to twenty years for robbery. Chicago police were asked last night to help find him. Shubert's wife lives on the northwest side, and he has other relatives, and it is believed he will seek refuge with one of them, police said.

60,000 BATTLE IN SEA OF MUD SOUTH OF PEIPING

Chinese Fight to Regain Lost Territory.

TIENTSIN, China, Aug. 22.—(AP)—The first major scale battle in the seven weeks' North China conflict was raging today about 30 miles southwest of Peiping on the Peiping-Hankow railway.

Thirty thousand men were reported engaged on each side. The battle, which began yesterday, was believed to be the opening clash in a determined Chinese effort to regain the territories which have fallen to the Japanese army in North Hopei province since warfare began July 7.

Japanese reports said the battle was going in their favor. Independent sources indicated no decision was apparent.

Infantry Forces Clash.

Strong infantry forces clashed early Saturday after an artillery exchange that lasted several hours. Torrential rains have fallen most of the past week, turning large areas of central Hopei into a swamp.

Under such conditions the Japanese superiority in tanks and heavy artillery was believed to have been largely neutralized. Also 97 Japanese planes concentrated at Tientsin in anticipation of this battle have been unable to get off the ground because of the deep mud.

The bitter struggle for Nankow pass, 30 miles northwest of Peiping, continued with the Japanese attack still impeded by the rains. In their nine days' offensive the Japanese have been able to push only about one-third through the 15 mile gateway to Mongolia.

Planes Bomb Kalgan.

Japanese reports, however, said Japanese army planes from Manchukuo have flown north of the Great Wall and heavily bombed Kalgan, principal Chinese concentration point in Chahar province, causing heavy losses.

A Japanese force turned toward Kalgan today, seeking to sever Chinese communications and supply lines to Nankow pass. The Japanese hoped by the westward march into Chahar to cut the Peiping-Suiyuan railway between Kalgan and Nankow, and thereby trap the Nankow defenders without access to food and munitions supplies.

Chinese were reported entrenched in central Chahar. The Japanese, it was said, were depending on Mongol and Manchu irregulars to harry this force of Chinese, allowing the Japanese to save their full strength for heavier resistance expected from the forces of Suiyuan governor, Gen. Fu Tso-yi, reenforced by Nanking regular army troops.

Another Japanese force, estimated at 10,000, was operating along Tientsin-Pukow railway south of the city, to keep Chinese forces advancing from the south at a safe distance.

SEE NEW BRITISH MOVE TO GET U. S. AID TO END WAR

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 22.—A new move to secure American aid in the British government's scheme for the withdrawal of Japanese and Chinese forces from Shanghai was foreshadowed in diplomatic circles here tonight. Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain will interrupt his vacation in Scotland this week to hold consultations in London.

Despite denials from Washington, D. C., the hasty departure of Robert Worth Bingham, American ambassador to London, for the United States concerns the Chinese-Japanese conflict, it is said.

ESCAPED SLAYER OF 5 IN ELECTION PARADE CAUGHT

Pennsylvania Convict in N. Y. for Months.

New York, Aug. 22.—[Special.]—Joseph J. Bruno, who last December walked away from the Pennsylvania jail where he was beginning a life sentence for his part in the killing of five Democratic marchers at Kelayres, Pa., the night before election day in 1934, was captured here today after a nation-wide search. He was arrested outside a rooming house in upper Manhattan, where he had lived since February.

The former Republican leader of the little mining town of Kelayres, who in 1934 saw most of his followers desert his leadership to support Gov. George H. Earle, had changed his name to Frank Miller. He had dyed his graying hair jet black and had grown a mustache, which he also dyed black. He had added 20 pounds to his weight. He had changed from horn rimmed to rimless spectacles.

Disguise Fails Fugitive.

None of these efforts at disguise helped him, however, when he emerged from his hiding place to confront Louis D. Buono, chief of Schuylkill county detectives, in whose office Bruno worked as a county detective before the election slayings. Face to face with his former chief and surrounded by New York police and Pennsylvania motor patrolmen Bruno readily admitted his identity.

He was quickly booked as a fugitive from justice. Then he was taken to police headquarters, where he will be held for the lineup tomorrow. Immediately after his arrest Attorney General Charles J. Margiotti of Pennsylvania, who has been seeking alleged "higher-ups" in Bruno's escape, left for New York by plane with Lynn G. Adams, head of the Pennsylvania motor patrol, to question Bruno.

Shots Poured Into Parade.

Bruno was a member of a family which had dominated the politics of the traditionally Republican mountain town of Kelayres unchallenged until 1934, when Gov. Earle, with his espousal of President Roosevelt's cause, threatened his dynasty. On election eve a Democratic rally was held. Afterward, the crowd, many of them Republican followers of Bruno, marched past his home, shouting taunts.

As the parade passed a volley of shots was heard. Five of the marchers were killed and nearly a score of others were wounded. Bruno and several of his kinsmen, six of whom have been convicted, were sentenced to long terms in prison ranging from ten years to life. The state Supreme court had sustained Bruno's convictions and he was awaiting transfer to Eastern penitentiary when he escaped.

SHOOTING VICTIM STAGGERS INTO A HOSPITAL FOR AID

Shot in the lungs and in the jaw, Alex Rossie, 22 years old, who gave his address as 2721 Ogden avenue, Chicago, staggered into the Clinic hospital in Michigan City, Ind., yesterday and asked for aid.

He told conflicting stories, first saying several men shot him and threw him into a ditch, then declaring a man shot him during a quarrel in a saloon. His condition is serious.

TRAPPED IN FIRE, WOMAN SUFFERS SERIOUS BURNS

Mrs. Hulda Wisner, 34 years old, was seriously burned by a fire that trapped her in her second floor apartment at 5200 Kenmore avenue. Her condition was reported as critical at the Edgewater hospital last night.

More than 20 residents of the six apartment building were routed from their beds at 5:45 a. m. by two radio announcers who were passing and saw flames and smoke pouring from a window. Russ Russell of W-G-N and Eddie Chase of WCFL raced through the corridors shouting and pounding on doors to awaken the sleeping residents. Mrs. Wisner was carried down a ladder by firemen.

HEAR RADIO CALL ON WAVE LENGTH OF LOST PLANE

POINT BARROW, Alaska, Aug. 22.—(AP)—Radio signals sent on the wave length of the lost soviet polar plane added new hope to the search today as Sir Hubert Wilkins roared out over the Arctic wastes seeking the six flyers who vanished Aug. 13.

News of the signals, which could not be interpreted, came from Moscow, where officials ordered northern soviet stations to broadcast rescue plans in the hope that the missing flyers, headed by Sigismund Levanevsky, could be reached.

8 EXECUTED FOR FATAL ACCIDENTS IN SOVIET PLANTS

'Wrecker' Purge Extends to Children's Groups.

MOSCOW, Aug. 22.—(AP)—The execution of eight workers in Leningrad factories after conviction by a military court of "wrecking activities and murdering workers" was disclosed by the soviet press today.

More specific charges were not made public, but the eight were understood to be involved in accidents in which lives were lost.

The court decided the accused were members of a counter-revolutionary organization operating in the Morosov and Ulganovsky plants and "were preparing similar acts" in an unnamed third plant. What the plants manufactured was not divulged, in keeping with the policy of preventing such information from falling into the hands of "spies," especially when defense industries are involved.

The commissariat of transportation announced the discharge of 25 workers for "sabotage and Trotzkyism" in connection with wrecks and 21 for "undermining work."

Children's Groups Probed.

The press disclosed that the drive against "wreckers," which has cost hundreds of adult Russians their lives or liberty, has extended into children's organizations.

Punishment has been meted out to scores in the campaign to prevent enemies of the regime from contaminating the budding bolshevist mind. There was no mention of executions in this cleanup, but there have been many arrests.

The latest cleanup was in western Siberia, where the Young Communists league declared it had found that "Trotzkyist bandits" had gained leadership of the organization.

In the Novosibirsk and Tomsk regions punishment meted out to young communist league secretaries Pantiukhov and Springis included expulsion, disgrace and arrest. Eight lesser officials were similarly punished.

Former Editor Accused.

Both the Young Communist league, composed of 5,000,000 members between 16 and 23 years of age, and the Young Pioneers, 6,000,000 strong, ranging from 10 to 16 years of age, were declared affected by activities of the soviet unfaithful.

The league's newspaper, Komsomolskaya Pravda, named its own former editor in chief, V. M. Bubekin, three former secretaries of the league's central committee, two former secretaries of the league in the Ukraine, and two deposed members of the Moscow city and regional committees as "Trotzkyists' or fascists.

The league organ declared:

"Fascist agents who got hold of leading positions, particularly in the Moscow, Sverdlov and Azov-Black Sea provinces, deliberately tried to disorganize the cause of communist education of youth—its political education."

Pravda, organ of the communist party, rebuked writers of new history textbooks, intended for use in a godless system of education, for failing to recognize that under Christianity the Russian people learned to read and write. The authors were criticized for "idolizing pre-Christian heathenism."

President Serves Notice.

The President, however, not only is giving no such assurances, but is serving notice upon his Democratic opponents in congress that the administration will employ all its vast power to retire them to private life as punishment for their sins. The Farley school of ghost writing has lost what little custom it still retained at the White House. Tommy Corcoran, who specializes in flaying and eviscerating "economic royalists," a term he coined for the Philadelphia acceptance speech, now has the contract.

Corcoran is reputed to have turned out the Roanoke Island speech, in which the President characterized his Democratic foes as American Lord Macaulays, and also the Guffey radio speech, in which Senators Burton K. Wheeler [D., Mont.], Edward R. Burke [D., Neb.], and Joseph C. O'Mahoney [D., Wyo.] were notified of Presidential proscription for their leadership of the successful fight to defeat the court packing bill.

Vengeance Policy Alarms.

At Democratic national headquarters the policy of vengeance upon which the President has embarked is being viewed with horror and foreboding. Farley as the dove of peace finds his wings clipped. Michelson was insulted when asked whether he wrote the Guffey speech.

YOUNG DEMOCRATS ON THEIR WAY HOME AS CONCLAVE ENDS

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 21.—[Special.]—Delegates to the third annual convention of the Young Democrats of America were on their way home today after electing Pitt Tyson Maner as president. Maner, who is 34 years old, is secretary to Gov. Bibb Graves of Alabama. His election was unanimous. Other new officers, also elected without opposition, are Mrs. Ocie Heady, Oklahoma City, Okla., vice president; Paul Williams, Columbia, Mo., secretary, and John Bailey, Hartford, Conn., treasurer. Pittsburgh, Pa., was chosen the 1939 convention city.

PRAISES G. O. P. FOR BATTLE ON COURT PACKING

Washington, D. C., Aug. 22.—[Special.]—By fighting it out on constitutional lines in the first session of the Seventy-fifth congress, the small Republican minority exposed the weaknesses of the administation to give the public its first real view of the Roosevelt régime, John Hamilton, chairman of the Republican national committee, said tonight.

"The first session of the Seventy-fifth congress is over and the voters have a far clearer understanding of the New Deal than they had last November," Mr. Hamilton said. "Leadership which swept all before it in the last election has failed the people.

"The country knows now that no matter how much credit belongs to the minority of Democratic senators who opposed the President's Supreme court packing bill," Hamilton said, "and much credit does belong to them, that attack on the court would have been defeated if every single Republican senator, every single Republican representative had not been against it from the beginning to end."

REP. SNELL HITS 75TH CONGRESS AS FUTILE BODY

"Do Nothing Session," Says G. O. P. Leader.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 22.—[Special.]—The session of congress that ended yesterday was the "greatest do-nothing session in the last half century," in the opinion of Representative Bertrand H. Snell, Republican leader of the house.

"Notwithstanding overwhelming majorities in both houses, and all the flamboyant promises of the last campaign," said Mr. Snell, "the Democratic party did not enact a single major piece of constructive legislation for the improvement of the national economic situation. For the moment representative government in the United States has broken down.

"The first session of the 75th congress appropriated in excess of 10 billion dollars, more than twice the annual average of appropriations in the decade prior to 1933. The national debt has been increased to more than 37 billion, the highest in our history.

Spending at Dizzy Pace.

"During the first six weeks of the current fiscal year the federal government spent hundreds of millions more than during the corresponding weeks of the previous year. During the entire session this year the administration did not make one effective move to balance the budget. Inflationary government spending has steadily increased living costs in every direction.

"No move has been made to create permanent jobs for the unemployed. Not even a gesture has been made toward improvement of the social security system, as promised by both parties last year.

"An administration dedicated to spoils has continued to undermine the civil service merit system to create jobs for the party faithful.

"Both congress and the administration have refused to investigate and expose the most shocking political scandal of our lives—the bold and flagrant high-jacking of corporations, in direct violation of the federal corrupt practices act, through the sale of the President's autographed edition of the Democratic book of 1936.

Assails Relief Policy.

"Nothing has been attempted toward squeezing the political plunder out of the administration of federal relief.

"Nothing has been done to reestablish the due processes of constitutional government by the withdrawal of so-called 'emergency' powers of the President. Instead many of these powers have been renewed.

"Nothing has been attempted toward correction of our extravagant gold purchasing policy which hobbles the economy not only of the United States but of the entire world.

"With the Democratic party a house divided against itself, where shall the people turn? The only way this country ever can get back on the track of sound progress and prosperity is to elect a Republican President and give him a majority in both houses of congress."

ROBS CAFE CASHIER.

A bandit yesterday robbed Robert Johnston, 327 South Clark street, cashier in a Thompson restaurant at 110 West Van Buren street, of $95.

3 DAY AIR RACE TO OPEN SEPT. 3 AT CLEVELAND

Cleveland, O., Aug. 22.—[Special.]—Competition by the country's leading racing pilots for new speed records and a share of $80,000 prize money will share honors with one of the greatest peace time demonstrations by the country's military air forces when the national air races are staged at Cleveland Municipal airport, Sept. 3 to Sept. 5.

Large fields of swift racing planes await the starter's gun in the Los Angeles-Cleveland Derby and the 200 mile Thompson trophy closed course race that feature the competitive events of the air meet.

The army, navy and marine air corps each will be represented by large squadrons of fighting and bombing planes.

BEATING VICTIM CAUSES ARREST OF POLICEMAN

Policeman Bernard Girard of River Forest was served with a warant yesterday charging him with beating Benjamin R. Hess, also of River Forest, on Aug. 3. The warant was issued by Justice of the Peace Martin McGrath of Oak Park. Girard surrendered under the warant and was released on signing his own bond. Hess said that on the night of Aug. 3, when he was leaving the store of the Western Refrigerating company in River Forest, where he is employed, he was seized and beaten by Girard. He said Girard accused him of being a burglar.

WOMAN KILLED IN AUTO ACCIDENT.

Newark, O., Aug. 22.—[Special.]—Mrs. Eugene Sarchi, 54, of 4871 Broadway, New York City, died in a hospital here today from injuries suffered in an automobile accident Saturday.

4,500 BATHERS ATTEND BEACH HOUSE OPENING

In spite of chilly breezes, 4,500 bathers attended the formal opening yesterday of the new Montrose-Wilson beach house, completed recently by the park district with Works Progress administration labor. The house will accommodate 4,000 persons at one time. Mayor Kelly spoke at the opening ceremonies, and J. Frank Lyman, park board secretary, presided.

Yesterday's weather was rather cool for swimming, but was splendid for other outdoor attractions. Parks were crowded, and the Chicago Zoological park at Brookfield attracted 53,524 visitors, the second largest attendance since the zoo was opened on July 8, 1934. Edward H. Bean, zoo director, attributed yesterday's attendance in part to the fact that the giant panda and gorrillas are now in outside quarters, and to the additional fact that the weather cut down beach crowds.

FALL INJURIES FATAL.

Mrs. Augusta Zander, 76 years old, died in the County hospital yesterday following a fall from bed in her home at 3042 South Tripp avenue on July 26.

NEW YORK CITY TRANSIT TANGLE DEFIES SOLUTION

Billion in Public Cash Fails to Solve Problem.

BY WILLIAM BROMAGE.

New York, Aug. 22.—[Special.]—The expenditure of more than a billion dollars of public money for improvement of rapid transit facilities in New York has provided a huge system of subway and elevated lines but still leaves the city far from a happy solution of its entire local transportation problem.

New York is the foremost of four cities in the country with rapid transit systems. The others are Chicago, Boston, and Philadelphia. All except Chicago have subways and all except Chicago have found it necessary in varying degrees to subsidize local transportation. Chicago, on the contrary, has treated its transit systems as sources of revenue for the city.

Transit Problem Different.

New York's transit problem is different from Chicago's or that of any other major city. The density of population in Manhattan, one of the five boroughs in New York, is approximately five times as great as that of Chicago. In contrast to Chicago, where the major part of transit travel is outside the central business district, the bulk of riding in New York is into and out of the congested areas.

Today New York has real rapid transit service even though it is not always convenient or comfortable. The subway and elevated lines carry nearly two billion passengers a year. Operating up and down lower Manhattan are five subway and four elevated lines, each with its express and local service.

There are five subway lines from Manhattan to Brooklyn, one elevated and three subway lines from Manhattan to Queens and three subway and two elevated lines from Manhattan to the Bronx. Many lines are 15 to 20 miles or more in length.

7,500 Cars in Use.

The city has more than 250 route miles of subway and elevated lines, embracing approximately 900 miles of single track operation. The bulk of the mileage is in the subway system, which operates underground in the congested areas and on elevated structure outside the busiest sections. Approximately 7,500 subway and elevated cars are in use.

The subway passenger gets a fast ride. On express runs an average speed of 25 miles an hour is maintained with top speeds of 40 to 45 miles an hour. Local trains in the subway average about fifteen miles an hour. Ten cars are operated in a train.

The subway system was costly to build, and despite the accomplishment of providing high speed travel through the center of greatest congestion in the country there still are inconveniences and discomforts in getting around the city. There are three different rapid transit systems—two private and one city operated. They are in competition with each other at many points and there are no intersystem transfer arrangements.

Transit Lines Built Piecemeal.

For the rider who is served fully by one line the facilities are good—if the discomfort of being wedged into a car with 200 other people in the rush hours and the hot, stuffy air in the summer are overlooked.

However, for the person who wants to get from one part of the city to another where there are no direct rapid transit lines there are many inconveniences and double fares. Experts say the rapid transit lines were built piecemeal and without a definite long range program.

Sixty-two per cent of all transit riders are subway or elevated passengers, and most of these are taken on their journeys in fast time. Nearly 40 per cent use surface vehicles, and for those who have any distance to travel the ride is inconvenient.

Surface facilities are hodgepodge, with an astonishingly large number of independent companies holding franchises for street car and bus operation. There are four companies operating street cars and 35 companies furnishing bus service.

With the exception of Brooklyn, where 100 new streamlined street cars similar to those on Madison street in Chicago were put into operation recently, street cars for the most part are antiquated vehicles. Buses, on the other hand, are chiefly of modern construction. The extent to which buses have supplanted street cars here will be discussed in a subsequent article.

Men of Science Will Hunt Health Secrets in Jungles

New York, Aug. 22.—(AP)—An expedition equipped with radio direction finders to keep from getting lost in Brazilian jungles will start this fall to look for a new angle on the health of civilized man. The plans were announced today by the American Museum of Natural History.

Arrow points to approximate locality of expedition's goal.

The leader is Dr. William Hall Holden, staf surgeon of the museum. He will take the blood pressures of jungle natives who never have seen a white man. The study is designed to show whether the blood pressures of these wild people rise with age like civilized man's.

Offers Disease Theory.

Dr. Holden suspects that numerous diseases of civilization are due to high blood pressure, induced by the effect of anxiety and tension complexes on the automatic nervous system.

He believes that some of the seeming miracles of mental healing may be explained as due to inducing mental calm, with a consequent lowering of critical blood pressures and nervous tensions.

If the natives do not have the usual advance in pressure with increasing age, nor the diseases which appear to go with the pressure, he thinks the object lesson can be made of use to civilized peoples.

Dr. Holden will explore in northern Brazil, just south of the Akari mountains, which form the southern boundary of British Guiana.

Radio Finder New Idea.

The radio set, he said, is something new in jungle exploration. It will have a loop direction finder. The expedition's base camp, in the mountains, will be equipped with a beam sending apparatus. This radio beam will strike east and west across the jungle area which he proposes to explore.

North and south across the same territory is a beam already available from a regular station at Georgetown, British Guiana, about 600 miles north. The two beams will intersect at more or less right angles in the jungle. From them Dr. Holden expects to be able to chart his position with reference to his base camp.

DROP PATERNITY ISSUE IN KUEHN DIVORCE ACTION

Attorneys for both sides in the divorce suit of Edward G. Kuehn, real estate broker, against his wife, Mrs. Verna G. Kuehn, 2817 Logan boulevard, will appear before Judge Joseph B. David this morning to ask that the question of the paternity of Mrs. Kuehn's 3 month old baby be left open.

At the last hearing of the case both lawyers asked permission to present arguments on the paternity of the baby girl, Patricia Anne, who was born June 16. This issue came as a surprise factor. But last night Benjamin S. Leiser, Kuehn's lawyer, explained the lawyers felt arguments on paternity might cause the child future embarrassment.

3D RAPE ATTACK IN 2 DAYS SPURS WAR ON MORONS

Woman Knocked Down as She Walks Alone.

on whom police hopes were pinned is a sexual degenerate. He was arrested early yesterday by Lieut. John J. Walsh's squad of the 48th street and Wabash avenue station. He came from Los Angeles last month and for the last two weeks had been sleeping on benches along Drexel boulevard near the Chicago hospital.

Witnesses who saw a colored man loitering about the hospital for days before the crime will be asked to view this man. He suits the description broadcast by police: Skin, dark yellow; age, 23 years; height, 5 feet 5 inches; weight, 140 pounds; wearing white shirt, gray cap, and dark trousers.

61 Suspects at One Station.

There were 61 suspects at the Wabash avenue station, 11 at the Hyde Park station, and 10 at the Woodlawn station, all in connection with the Kuchta murder. They were being finger printed and questioned.

A blow to hopes of convicting the slayer came in a police announcement that a single "good" finger print found in Miss Kuchta's room was that of her roommate, Miss Florence Palmowski, 18 years old. Therefore police attached all the more importance to a radio stolen by the moron, a table model said to be no longer manufactured. Pawnshops are being checked.

Secret showups of suspects will be employed to assure safety to women victims of sex criminals who are afraid to view the suspects openly. It was learned that Miss Virginia Austin, assaulted a week ago in the Washington hotel, 167 West Washington street, who disappeared thereafter, has been found by police and is now available as a witness to help end the series of similar crimes.

Negro Caught in Trap.

Orell Jones, 28 years old, colored, 744 East 47th street, was seized at 2 o'clock this morning for questioning in the moron investigation when he kept an appointment—set as a trap—with Miss Michaeline De Leau, 19, of the Berkshire hotel, at State street and Roosevelt road. She was "Miss America" at the New Orleans Mardi Gras in 1934.

A few days ago Jones handed her a note in a South State street theater where she is appearing, asking to meet her. Police directed her to arrange the meeting. They said he answers the general description of the man wanted for the assault on Miss Virginia Austin in the Washington hotel on Aug. 15. They will also investigate him in connection with the Kuchta murder which occurred about two blocks from his home.

Excursionist Rescued After Fall Overboard from Boat

Joseph Danilovich, 24 years old, 920 North Wolcott avenue, a chauffeur, fell overboard from the excursion steamer, Anna C. Wilson, off Navy pier yesterday but saved himself from drowning by grabbing a life preserver tossed him after Capt. Edward Hintz turned the boat around. With him was Valentine Bilski, 28, of 1006 North Wolcott avenue.

KIDNAP CANADIAN TEXTILE OFFICIAL FROM GOLF LINKS

MONTREAL, Que., Aug. 22.—[Special.]—Samuel Griss, an official of the Bruck silk mills, in Cowansville, Que., was "kidnaped" by a dozen men on the Cowansville golf course this afternoon. His abductors, in seven cars, drove him to the American border at Richford, Vt., where United States immigration department officers stopped the cavalcade, released Griss, and held five of his abductors.

Police know no reason for the abduction. There have been no labor troubles at the Bruck plant in recent months. Mrs. Griss, who was playing golf with her husband at the time of the abduction, attributed it to "a silly prank." Police, however, are taking a more serious view.

The group drove up to the clubhouse, parked their cars in a position to get away quickly, and walked across the course to where the Grisses were playing.

ITALY CHRISTENS BIG BATTLESHIP; SECOND IN MONTH

GENOA, Italy, Aug. 22.—(AP)—For the second time in four weeks Italy today launched a new 35,000 ton battleship. The Littorio slid down the ways into an angry sea while a throng estimated at 100,000 cheered.

Her sister ship, the Vittorio Veneto, was launched at Trieste July 25. Their completion, perhaps late next year, will give the Italian navy, for a few months at least, the most modern and powerful fighting craft afloat.

FINDS CHURCH PUZZLED HOW TO MEET NAZI BLOW

State Grasps Donations, Pastor Charges.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Aug. 22.—The Rev. Mr. Roericht, Confessional [Evangelical Lutheran] pastor, declared in his sermon at the Jesus Christ church in suburban Dahlem today that the state is trying to crush the church and that the church is puzzled as to what action to take.

"The state is seeking to crush the church—it is reaching out to control the innermost corner of our lives—it is even grasping for the little donations we make every Sunday for our church," he cried.

Preaches in Niemoeller's Church.

In admitting that the church was puzzled about how to cope with the situation, he told the congregation:

"The only way we can win for the church is to trust in Christ, embodying the love of God and our fellow man."

At 8 p. m., before the time for the regular service, the Rev. Walter Niemoeller, brother of the Rev. Martin Niemoeller, former world war submarine commander who now is in prison, addressed his brother's congregation. The Rev. Walter Niemoeller himself was released from custody some weeks ago. His brother was arrested July 1 for resisting Nazi church laws.

Pray for Jailed Pastors.

Confessional pastors, at the end of their services today, listed thirty-one pastors who are excluded from their parishes, thirty-one who are forbidden to speak in public, twelve who have been removed from their posts, and 103 pastors and church helpers who are in prison. While these men and women were being mentioned the congregations rose and offered silent prayers for them and their families.

Burns Her Feet Walking Barefoot; Dies of Infection

Mrs. Rose Monaco, 70 years old, 7034 South Hermitage avenue, died in the Holy Cross hospital last night of an infection suffered under unusual circumstances. During a religious celebration in her neighborhood on Aug. 15 she walked barefooted and suffered foot burns. A foot infection developed.

Victim of Policeman's Gun Identified as Ex-Convict

A colored former convict who was shot to death yesterday by an Evanston policeman when he refused to halt was identified later in the day by his widow, Anita, 30 years old, as Edward Young, 43, of 4949 Prairie avenue, whose police record dates to 1921. Sergt. Eugene Ruland shot Young during a chase in the 2700 block, Sheridan road, Evanston.

CHEMISTRY AND CLOTH

By CALEB

IN the misty days of the middle centuries men and women of unorthodox thinking busied themselves in garrets and hutches, in barns and in remote cottages, at secret experimenting. Alchemy was their line—the artificial production of gold their goal.

Alchemy, the hardly reputable pseudo-science of several hundred years ago, has had as its natural descendant our thoroughly reputable and remarkable science—chemistry.

Chemistry makes no attempt to turn the baser metals into gold. And yet if the alchemists of old could shuffle out of the shades of the past and peer over the shoulders of the experts in the science descended from their crude experiments they would be entranced!

Possibly no book could be written which would summarize in an up-to-date manner the accomplishments of chemistry. By the time diligent research and writing detailed the results from one end of the country to the other, the job would have to be started all over again. For the conquests of chemistry are rapid-fire and continuous.

Among them all, hardly any are more interesting or more apparently miraculous than that the colored automobile enamel you see rolling down the street once grew in a farmer's field. Chemistry showed the way.

In a world which needs more income and wealth to divide, the world cannot divide more by making or growing less. Chemistry is showing us how to use products of the field in industry. The more industry can use the produce of the farm, the more money the farmer has to spend for the products of industry.

Other advances of importance are being made across chemistry's entire broad front. Not the least among these are many in connection with fabrics.

In draperies, in floor coverings, and in piece goods, chemistry has wrought wonders. It has made new fabrics of new composition. It has made colors brilliant and it has made them permanent. It has increased wearing qualities and added new virtues to already fine fabrics and the work goes on.

The department store brings these and many other accomplishments of science promptly to the service of the public.

BATTLE TO LEAD AUTO WORKERS' UNION IMPENDS

C. I. O. Unit Prepares for National Convention.

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 22.—[Special.]—A battle for leadership of the United Automobile Workers of America appeared likely today as union delegates gathered for the national convention of the radical young unit of John L. Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization. The convention opens tomorrow with an attendandce of 3,000 anticipated.

Signs of conflict within the official family of the U. A. W. have appeared on several occasions in the last few months. Whether a determined attempt will be made to defeat Homer Martin, youthful president, cannot be determined yet. However, the division between Martin and the so-called unity group headed by Vice Presidents Wyndham Mortimer and Ed Hall is expected to pervade most of the proceedings.

Two Slates of Officers.

Martin has held control of the executive board sessions this week and dominated committee appointments, but the attitude of the delegates is still to be determined. Backing Martin is Richard Frankensteen, organizational director. Each group will have a slate of officers. Martin will be on both slates for reëlection. Neither group is conservative, but Wyndham is more radical than Martin.

The Wyndham-Hall group proposes to increase the number of vice presidents by one and to make them of equal importance and not designate them by rank.

Ford Action on Program.

The campaign for organization of Ford workers will be an important matter up for consideration. So will the subject of negotiating a new contract with General Motors corporation. The whole subject of unauthorized strikes such as have interrupted operations of General Motors plants since the union obtained its contract will be taken up.

The question of disposing of branches of the union which have no industrial association with the automobile trade will be discussed, although the final decision on this matter probably will be left to Lewis and the C. I. O. In its rapid growth the U. A. W. has taken in practically any group including tavernkeepers, cooks, lether workers, and street car motormen.

BRAZIL PLANS TO DESTROY 15,000,000 BAGS OF COFFEE

[Copyright: 1937: By the New York Times.]

RIO DE JANEIRO, Aug. 22.—Congress voted 500,000 contos, about $35,000,000, for coffee defense, it was learned today. Approximately 15 million bags of coffee will be withdrawn from the domestic market up to next December for destruction as part of the program urged by the Brazilian coffee states convention recently held here. After the withdrawal, department officials hold, a quasi-statistical equilibrium will be reached.

Congress has ordered the treasury department to issue paper currency to a total of 500,000 contos as soon as senate approves the measure. The treasury will issue the notes which will be handled by the Bank of Brazil and offered to other banks.

The milreis dropped suddenly yesterday, the fall being attributed to the coming issue.

STINGING FLIES AND SIGHTSEERS PESTER NUDISTS

Mays Landing, N. J., Aug. 22.—[Special.]—Thousands of stinging flies swarmed up from the marshlands today and harassed 75 nudists, who were perfect targets while they listened to speakers at the annual national convention of the American Sun Bathing association convention at Sunshine park.

And while this nude audience was waging a losing fight against the insects, 200 other unclad delegates were having their own troubles with a group of sightseers who anchored boats on the river and passed the day "looking over" the nudists through binoculars.

Frequent slaps against fleshy flanks and the swishing of fly swatters nettled the Rev. Robert Moore, guest speaker, who finally was shouting. Mr. Moore was fully clothed.

After apologizing for "coming here with too many fig leaves on," he went on to say that "only the indecent people think nudism is indecent."

PICKETS UNION OFFICIAL MATE FOR LONG HOURS

Yakima, Wash., Aug. 22.—(AP)—Mark Willard, secretary of the local Culinary Workers' union, found himself on the receiving end of a picket line today.

Mrs. Willard, tiring of "nonunion conditions at home," appeared in front of the central labor council building with a placard which read: "Mark Willard—Unfair to His Family—80 Hours a Week for $25."

"Mark is too good a union man," she said. "He works 10, 12, and 15 hours a day in committee meetings and he's getting paid for an 8 hour day. I'm getting sick and tired of being an A. F. of L. widow."

What some of America's aquatic stars say about Camels

SPRINGBOARD ACE. Lovely Jane Fauntz Manske, of Chicago, says: "It's Camels for me! Tense competition and all the changes of diet when traveling are liable to upset digestion. But I smoke Camels at mealtimes and after and my digestion runs smoothly."

The best of meals tastes better and digests easier when you have an abundant flow of digestive fluids—alkaline digestive fluids so vital to good digestion. Smoking Camels encourages this flow—helps you enjoy a sense of well-being. Steady smokers say: "Camels set me right!"

HAROLD ("DUTCH") SMITH, who holds Olympic diving championships, would "walk a mile for a Camel!" "I find a great deal of pleasure in Camels," says "Dutch." "I long ago discovered that smoking a Camel restores my flow of energy after a strenuous exhibition—gives me a 'lift.'"

THREE-TIME OLYMPIC WINNER in the spectacular high-diving event. Dorothy Poynton Hill, of Los Angeles—a steady Camel smoker—says: "I prefer Camels because they don't get on my nerves. And," she adds, "I like Camels because they have such a rich, delicate flavor and never tire my taste."

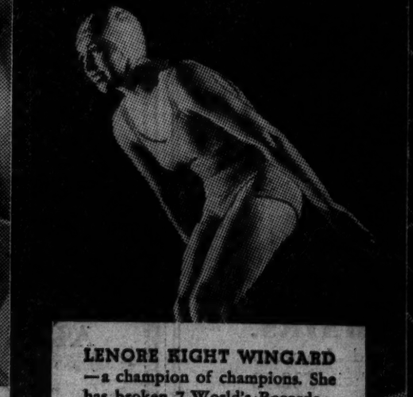
"PETE" DESJARDINS—another famous diver—speaking: "Divers like a mild cigarette that doesn't upset their nerves. That's why I prefer to smoke Camels. They never jangle my nerves."



LENORE KIGHT WINGARD—a champion of champions. She has broken 7 World's Records—16 Nat'l Records—in speed swimming. Lenore comments on smoking: "Camels are certainly mild. They never jangle my nerves."

AQUAPLANE EXPERT. Here's Miss Gloria Wheeden, who can do hand-stands on an aquaplane. She is about to enjoy a picnic luncheon on the speed boat. "Smoking Camels and eating go together," Miss Wheeden says. "I smoke Camels at mealtimes and enjoy the sense of well-being that good digestion brings me."

LABORITES, REDS BREAK; BRITISH 'FRONT' DOOMED

Party Fears Tieup Would Give Moscow a Hand.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 22.—A complete break between the British Labor party and the communists and radicals who have sought to form a popular front in England, including in it also some Liberals, will be registered by the Trades Union congress next month at Norwich, it appeared certain today. The Labor party congress at Bournemouth in October also will recognize the split, it appeared.

Furious that Labor members of parliament refused to vote against credit for rearmament, the communists have been denouncing the Laborites and jeering that they no longer constitute even an opposition.

Moscow Influence Feared.

They are expected to try to bring what pressure they can into play at the two congresses this fall to repair the severe check they got in recent months to the movement for all opposition parties to get together.

The British Labor party has held aloof, fearing any united front with communism would lead to the third internationale in Moscow putting its finger in the British pie.

British Laborites who were persuaded by Sir Stafford Cripps, president of the Socialist league, to favor an alliance with the communists, were called to order quickly and Cripps himself was given a choice of getting out of the party or abandoning the Socialist league.

Labor's opposition to Moscow and its determination to have no association with the Russians has just been categorically reaffirmed by Maj. Clement R. Attlee, Labor party leader, in a book just out. It is called "The Labor Party in Perspective."

In it Attlee says that labor will have nothing to do either with the communists on the one side or the Liberals on the other. Perish the idea of a united front in Great Britain, is Attlee's theme.

Denies Democracy Is Periled.

"If Democracy were in danger of suppression in England, a popular front would be necessary, but that is not the case at present," he wrote.

Attlee's view is that the Liberals do not believe in socialism and would not add strength to Labor. A communist alliance would be no good either because the communists do not believe in Labor party methods and do not accept majority rule, he said.

"A violent struggle in this country would be dangerous for civilization, whichever party won," concluded Attlee. "An effort of one section of the community to dominate the other would lead to terrorism as an instrument of action. We see this in Fascist Italy and Nazi Germany and communist Russia. The British people will accept neither communism nor Fascism. These two systems only attract those who have not reached political maturity."

Harvey Johnson.

Harvey Johnson, 25 years old, 1418 Lake Shore drive, a commercial artist who was drawing nearby on the north bank, swam to Miss Parkington's rescue. Morris Snyder, 3441 Grenshaw street, and Edward Bailey, 7128 East End avenue, bridgetenders at the Dearborn and State street bridges, took Johnson and Miss Parkington into a boat.

HANGS SELF IN ROOM.

THE CONGRESS WHICH SAVED THE CONSTITUTION.

The first session of the Seventy-fifth congress will be memorable for what it refused to do. Mr. Roosevelt's mandate was to be exercised upon this congress. He had carried all but two states. The result of the election was assumed in the White House to be a full grant of authority from the people to the President to do his will as their own. Hitler was given his authority in such fashion.

Mr. Roosevelt, however, had not made his purposes and intentions clear in advance. It is his strategy not to do so. The terms of a mandate require that he should. His preference is for concealment and surprise.

His message submitting the court bill was the surprise. A reference back to the comment at the time the bill was submitted will show that there was little expectation he could be defeated in his attack upon the judges, although it was known that there would be no Supreme court if he succeeded. The court as an independent body would be gone. The President could break it by packing it.

Congress by agreeing to this proposal would prove that it also had submitted to an imperious will and was not an independent branch of government. Two of the three branches needed to prevent the government of the United States from becoming an absolutism would have been taken over by one. The executive will would prevail whenever and however it was expressed. The United States would have become a one man government, with its massed burocrats and agents penetrating and governing every phase of American activity. These would have been the last days of the American republic if the people and their representatives had submitted.

The apprehension that the dominance of the White House was irresistible continued for weeks and Americans who knew what was intended could hardly believe that the opposition growing in the senate could do more than shake a fist, as a minority, against the degradation of the court. Then there came the astonishing climax.

Many of Mr. Roosevelt's particular supporters in the party said he was going too far. They made converts against him. They signed the report of the judiciary subcommittee in language and argument which will long be useful. They declared that the measure should be so decisively defeated that its like never again would be presented to an American congress.

The bill, as it was to be proved later, was then dead. The substitute was one of changes in judicial procedure which might have come out of any session without comment. The first session of the Seventy-fifth congress has this achievement to its credit. The supposition was that it was primed to do the executive's bidding. Mr. Roosevelt's prestige was at its highest. He was supposed to be in position to say that his will was the popular will and must be obeyed. He refused compromise and demanded obedience. Until congress killed the court bill there was an American dictatorship. It was defeated in an attempt to assert itself. The American republic could not have endured under the new form of government which the bill would have established. The republic would have been left without its protections.

A congress which made this fight against autocracy cannot be regarded as a bad one. Many other unwise measures were urged upon it. It accepted some, postponed others, and modified some it accepted. It was a freer congress than its predecessor. It refused to knuckle under to powerful lobbies demanding a return for political support. The White House lost the whip hand.

It is the theory of American government that one branch shall check the other when revolutionary measures outside the law are proposed. This congress saved the constitution and the republic. It is criticized as a do-nothing congress. We think that the biggest thing it had to do it did extremely well.

HELPING THE HELPLESS.

The metropolitan section of THE TRIBUNE recently told of the Opportunity Guild, an organization for aiding shut-ins which was founded on the north side by a woman who herself was able to abandon crutches only a few weeks ago.

The guild helps physically handicapped persons to obtain work, provides home work for those unable to leave their homes, and conducts entertainments in which both its able bodied and handicapped members participate. It sponsors two shops conducted by handicapped persons. Its activities parallel in a general way those carried on for years, on a broader scale, by the Vocational Society for Shut-Ins.

Physical pain is only part of the load borne by the shut-in or invalid. Worse than pain, frequently, is the mental suffering, the hopelessness, which comes of the feeling that the handicapped person is a burden on relatives or faces a permanent prospect of the cold charity of public relief as an "unemployable."

Neighborly aid is usually more successful in dispelling this hopelessness, by reason of its personal quality, than the necessarily more formalized efforts of public or organized charity. Such organizations as the Opportunity Guild and the Vocational Society deserve to be duplicated or extended in other parts of Chicago.

JOHNNY BURGOYNE AS A GUN.

One of the 250 statues in London called atrocities is that of Gen. Burgoyne in Waterloo place. The general is one of the number marked for recasting into useful form as an implement of war.

"Gentleman Johnny" was something of a parliamentarian, fancied himself a bit as a playwright, and at one time impressed the war office with his talents as a strategist. Out of this came the celebrated descent from the north which wound up in the Saratoga region with the politest surrender known to military history. Everything was in the best traditions of civilized warfare and nothing would shock "Gentleman Johnny" more than to be made into a gun employed in the present unpleasant proceedings called military operations.

The gun might be a better gun than Burgoyne was a general. No one ever questioned his personal intrepidity in action. As to military atrocities, although "Gentleman Johnny" did apologize profusely to Gen. Schuyler for burning his house, it is to be observed that he used in his military train a bunch of Indians so scandalous in their behavior that they scared his own troops half out of their wits.

In accordance with the military amenities of the times, many of the officers had their wives and families with them in the New York wilderness. The gifted Baroness von Riedesel, wife of the commander of the unfortunate Brunswickers, made miserable by the woods and rattlesnakes, had her children with her and complained that half her time was spent keeping them from being scared under the bed by the sight of some painted Indian face.

Each age has its own particular atrocities, but one can be certain that Gen. Burgoyne would not like to be either a projectile or a gun in any hostilities to be contemplated now.

THE INEVITABLE RESULT.

Some interesting by-products of the federal government's efforts to assume control of highway truck and bus service through the motor carrier act are coming to light. A group of Chicago and Milwaukee truckers has asked the interstate commerce commission to examine the rates being charged by the railways on fine papers and paper articles from various Wisconsin mills in the Green Bay district to Chicago. They complain that such railway rates are unremunerative and actually lower than the basis available from Milwaukee, which all sounds very reasonable until it is recalled that the Wisconsin metropolis does not boast a paper mill among its industries.

Stripped of its verbiage, the two transportation interests are fighting for a bone. This particular trafic is especially valuable to the trucking companies, as it would furnish return loads for vehicles operating out of the central markets at Milwaukee and Chicago. The railway rates, however, are so low that the trucks cannot secure the business and make any money. They, therefore, have appealed to the commission with the hope that the regulatory body will order the railways to advance their charges, and thus enable highway transportation to cut in.

Nobody can prove that the cost of transporting an individual shipment is unremunerative to a railroad. Even if some formula could be devised, the stubborn fact would remain that the railways would be better off with the trafic than without it for the simple reason that there can be no compensating economy anywhere. Each and every shipment handled by a railroad is exactly like a seat at the theater. The standard price may be $2.20, but a quarter would be preferable to vacancy.

The motor carrier act is working out as prophesied by THE TRIBUNE. Its administration is not in the public interest but has merely provoked cat and dog fights between the carriers themselves. This type of regulated competition can have but one effect—to raise all rates when progress in the science of transportation should be steadily reducing the cost of abridging distances.

Editorial of the Day

NAZIISM OVER HERE.

[The Sun, Baltimore.]

Representative Dickstein, the war veterans' organizations and other groups have been complaining that the several Nazi camps and German-American leagues that have lately been set up in this country have been established for the specific purpose of promoting the German brand of Fascism among Americans. This has been emphatically denied by other individuals and groups, but particularly by the leaders of the German-American Nazis. Some of the latter have said that they would be glad to have congress inquire into their policies and activities.

In Germany there is a publication called the Kurier, which speaks for the Institute for Germanism Abroad, the parent body of the Nazi leagues in this and other countries. This agency has never hesitated to make it clear that it exists primarily to spread Nazi propaganda abroad. Now comes its publicity organ, the Kurier, with a leading editorial on the Nazi camps in the United States to show that their chief function is political and propagandistic and not social in any sense, as the German-American Nazis contend.

The editorial declares that the initial aim of these Nazi groups in America is to bring about "the intellectual and spiritual reform" of all German-Americans "in accord with the model furnished by the old homeland." Having attained this goal, the editorial continues, "we will then organize German-Americans for spiritual regeneration, economic support, and public schooling. German-American influence thus economically strengthened and politically reactivated shall then be thrown in the balance under our leadership for the coming struggle with communism and Jews and for the American's regeneration."

The Kurier adds that the German-American Nazis are "prepared to enlist in the final struggle and take their place in America's political life while preserving their German 'Weltanschauung' and racial character in order to exercise a determining influence on the new America." It denies Mr. Dickstein's charge that the United States stands "in danger" of this Nazi propaganda, not on the ground that no Nazi agitation is being carried on but on the ground that most Americans no longer see any danger in this spread of "Germanism."

In other words, the Nazis are attacking Representative Dickstein, the American Legion and other critics, not because they are wrong but because they are right. The Kurier and the Nazis in this country, moreover, are very much mistaken if they believe that the American people will allow themselves to be "regenerated" by any group of Nazis. Americans of German origin would be well advised to drop this nonsense before it reacts against them. Most sensible people have no objection to sentimental loyalty to the "old country," whatever it may be, and, indeed, applaud such loyalty. But a lot of heat may be avoided if there is less talk about regenerating America.

How to the Line let the quips fall where they may. Reg. U.S. Pat. Office

FOR A WHILE they urged us to buy select libraries of the world's great classics. Now comes a magazine which offers condensed versions of the best selling books of the day. The primary appeal in both cases is to those who would like to shine in conversation and who believe implicitly that intelligent people talk nearly always about books—never of personalities or politics or anything of that humble sort.

Now we understand, from those who are in a position to know, that books are a poor tenth among the conversational subjects of intelligent people and that the "Have you read ——?" type of chatter is practically never heard in their haunts. They are said to value books principally for the ideas which by slow absorption, combination, and revision they can make their own. We have heard even that they talk personalities sometimes to the exclusion of nearly everything else!

Is it possible that Shakespeare, Cervantes, Goethe and others of their ilk may, after all, represent a quite inferior type of mind and that the really great men of the world remain inarticulate? The basis of this mad idea is a suspicion that completely intelligent persons may consider the urge to self-expression a rather childish one. Perhaps they are able to overcome it with some slight struggle, then go quietly to their graves without ever recording a single one of their ideas! . . . Brrrrr!

MUSING IN PRINT the other day on one or two favorite excerpts from the literature of criticism, we completely overlooked a few others which are worthy in every way of being repeated. One is from the pen of an English reviewer who wrote a tepid critique of a London performance of "Tobacco Road" and closed with the suggestion that actors and actresses of such undoubted ability would be better employed in a mounting of "Charley's Aunt." Classic examples of the higher criticism are Dorothy Parker's "She ran the gamut from A to B" and another eastern reviewer's summation of the O'Neill three decker as "Evening Becomes Intolerable." In conscientiously striving to give his readers as complete an idea as possible of the book under consideration H. L. Mencken has been known to include in his critique its weight (pounds and ounces) or its dimensions (feet or inches).

HOW SOME CHICAGOANS BATTLED DEPRESSION

THE TRIBUNE here presents the story of another Chicagoan who, workless but with high courage, faced the recent depression and fought through it without applying for relief. There is no inference to be drawn that all could have done it; nevertheless the case cited is inspiring. This and succeeding cases are from the files of the Illinois state employment service.

This man, a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania, is 44. A research engineer of considerable standing, he is a recognized authority on electrical engineering and design, radio, and aviation. An early aviator himself, he holds many aeronautical records. At one time he was a well known Greenwich Village artist. In 1932 he was making $7,200 a year. For the next two years he made nothing.

His savings soon were gone. He found a few minor jobs as consulting engineer, but received little or no remuneration. He experienced the treat of receiving thanks, instead of a check, for his work. He tried to get work as a common laborer, but his fractured leg was against him. His wife managed to get a few brief stenographic jobs. They soon took their son out of college.

Finally the father was employed by the Chicago park district at $150 a month to work out a new system of trafic lights for Michigan avenue. This lasted 5½ months, and was followed by another long idle interval. He then took a job as commercial artist at $100 a month.

Through the Illinois state employment service he recently obtained a research position in Florida. He now makes $250 a month.

INFECTIONS AND THE HEART

THE other day in chatting with a friend the question of the rôle played by infections—chiefly their effect upon the heart—was discussed. It was difficult for my companion to believe that the heart muscle, so richly supplied with fresh blood directly from the organ itself, could be damaged by typhoid fever, scarlet fever, diphtheria, etc.

"Yes," he said, "I can understand how one might be nauseated, or feverish, or headachy, but the heart? No, that would be about the last structure affected."

"But," I replied, "if disease lurks within the body, the circulation can and will carry bacteria or toxins or both to every muscle fiber, including the heart, the cells of which can no more withstand the onslaught than can those of the more delicate tissues."

Then I explained something about the electrocardiograph, by means of which we are able to obtain a picture of the operation of the heart—the work it is performing. I exhibited two such records, so that he could not fail to sense the difference. One was that of a normal adult, while the other depicted a badly damaged pumping organ, the owner of which was recovering from a long illness. Here is the "why" of the whole business.

On returning to work after an attack of influenza, sore throat, or bronchitis, the patient may not find himself at optimum efficiency. He lacks zest and "go" and is at a loss to understand just why he does not "come back" more quickly. In all probability the reason is that his heart muscle has lost some of its power. Either bacteria or toxins have weakened the fibers or lowered their blood supply.

Unless the patient is careful there may appear symptoms of fatigue, weakness, palpitation, or a dull ache—which may come and go—in the left side of the chest. Later, if the condition goes unrecognized and unheeded, breathlessness, sensations of smothering, or digestive upsets may develop. Finally heart failure lies in the offing, with a break in the power of the pump to deliver blood. Many a cardiac invalid has been created in just this manner.

Occasionally a convalescent patient will have a slight afternoon temperature as high as 100 degrees, and there may be some increase in the white cells. Examination of the heart will usually disclose that the sounds made by the contracting muscle and the closing valves are less clear than formerly. If an electrocardiogram is taken, the situation may be obvious: the organ has been injured.

What can be done?

In many cases the patient himself constitutes the most difficult element. It may be hard to convince him of the seriousness of the affair—the fact that he had a more deep-seated infection, perhaps, than he realized, or that he left his bed several days too soon. With all the evidence at hand, however, we may be able to persuade him to follow instructions. At least ten days in bed after the temperature has become normal is the rule. It may mean thirty days in all, because the afternoon rise may persist for some time. As a result the pulse will steady down to a plodding rate and remain there. Then and then only should the patient sit up and resume some activity.

In our enthusiasm to get rid of infection which may be prolonging the illness we are likely to recommend that diseased teeth be extracted or tonsils removed. If this is done before the fever has subsided completely and registered normal or below for a few weeks, we may face disaster. We must recall that the body is already weakened and to open the floodgate of an abscess, even a very small one, may result in a rekindling of the infection which may last for months.

Recovery is the rule, and there are very few instances in which careful supervision will not be rewarded with complete restoration of health. But the situation is a delicate one and requires the wisest sort of management.

We scarcely need to repeat that the heart muscle is the pièce de résistance of the circulation. If it is normal and intact, blood will be pumped over the arterial system ir adequate quantities and at the proper intervals. It is only when the muscle fails to perform as it is destined to but cannot that we must come to the rescue with the type of assistance which physicians have learned will be effective.

When the common cold levels an attack or when influenza saps strength to an unusual degree, let us delay two or three days longer than we may think necessary before returning to work.

GRAY HAIR.

D. W. writes:

1. I am a woman of 30 and have very thick, coarse, dry hair. Is there anything I can do to prevent or retard its turning gray?

2. Would the graying be hastened by either permanent waves given just at the ends of the hair, or the intense heat from the driers used in beauty parlors?

REPLY.

1. Gray hair is generally a matter of heredity, and not much can be done about it. It has also been attributed to prolonged mental work, anxiety, worry, and other causes of lowered vitality. Keeping the health up to par and gentle massage of the scalp may help to retard the color change.

2. No.

MAY BE DIGESTIVE.

S. G. F. writes: When a fellow has never had a stomach ache, and only an occasional headache, what causes the eyes to wave intermittently, interfering with sight? Relief comes in ten to twenty minutes after taking a laxative.

REPLY.

Some toxic disturbance, possibly of digestive origin. Do you smoke too much? If the condition persists, consult a skilled opthalmologist. Have the urine examined.

SNEEZING.

A. M. writes: What causes frequent sneezing during the day? Is it a serious sign? What is the cure?

REPLY.

It is possible you have a sinus infection or some irritation within the air spaces. Allergy—sensitivity to the pollen of grasses and flowers, dust, etc.—should be considered. Sneezing is also an early symptom of colds, influenza, and hay fever. Irrigate the nostrils with a weak solution of common salt in warm water.

SHE VOTES "YES."

Chicago, Aug. 16.—This morning's mail brought a letter from Dr. Bundesen asking if we would be willing to take a test for syphilis, and though it is too late to save the one we loved, I thank God that at last the country has awakened to the need of stamping out this dread disease. Only those who have seen their flesh and blood lie wasting away with no power on earth to save him can realize what i means to check the disease in time. The scene is branded on my brain and will be there until I die. It is the innocent that suffer most.

If the young girls and boys who are trying to evade our law by going to other states for marriage would visit one of our institutions and see the end of these cases they would be thankful for a law that gives them protection. Sheriff Toman is doing good work by stopping the autos bound for Crown Point and the circular sent out will save many lives, but the greatest need of all is to compel every physician who treats syphilis to take a special examination on this subject.

My young brother was pronounced cured by a doctor, yet six months later he was in his grave. The government or state should erect separate sanitariums for men and women in the early stages. Let there be a charge for those who can afford to pay, but place only real specialists of the plague in charge.

MR. KINSLEY PRAISED.

Chicago, Aug. 8.—I wish to thank and congratulate you on the series by Mr. Kinsley on the several colleges of Chicagoland. This is a long delayed recognition of the heroic work and the value of these institutions. These articles constitute a restatement of the ideals which have been distinctly American and from which we are urged, in some quarters, to depart.

ALMER PENNEWELL,

ON BEHALF OF FUND RAISERS.

New York, Aug. 10.—You direct an inference, both unkind and untrue, toward an honorable profession in your lead editorial of even date when you say: "Professional fund raisers for hospitals and universities dream of 50 per cent commissions but don't get them."

It is unkind in that you impute an almost criminal degree of avarice; it is untrue in that you imply that "professional fund raisers" work upon the most advantageous commission arrangement obtainable.

Neither assumption has any foundation in fact. Fund raising is one of the few professions so well regulated and policed from within that, through the years, it has required no supervision from without, governmental or otherwise.

I am speaking of the class you name: the "professional" who raises money for accepted social, religious, educational and philanthropical institutions as opposed to the racketeer who "promotes" questionable or nonexistent enterprises.

Financial campaign firms as well as independent directors conduct appeals upon a flat fee basis, not upon any commission arrangement of any description. These reputable firms and individuals refuse to undertake campaigns in instances where the institutions' needs do not warant the objective sought or where careful survey shows that the needed objective is impossible of realization.

Directors of such institutions realize that any commission arrangement would be an open invitation to the introduction of sky high and unscrupulous methods to increase commissions. The fee basis not only assures them of a dignified, efficient campaign but also enhances the reputation of the professional in charge and attracts contracts from like clients.

PARKING AT CORNERS.

Chicago, Aug. 19.—George Fleming of Mayor Kelly's Keep Chicago Safe committee says "Shrubbery, tall weeds, and trees must be removed where they obstruct the vision of motorists at street corners." How about parked cars near cross walks at street corners? Do not parked cars obscure the vision of both motorists and pedestrians and many accidents result? Shrubbery and weeds, etc., may be a hazard for motorists during the summer but parked autos near street crossings are death traps for pedestrians during the entire year and are the main cause of the continually increasing pedestrian death toll.

SCHIPA'S SALUTE.

Oak Park, Ill., Aug. 17.—I have just finished reading Edward Barry's fine article covering Tito Schipa's appearance last night at Grant park where it was my good fortune to be present.

In the early days of automobile travel I often saw that particular salute which he used exchanged between car drivers. It was known then, in central Illinois at least, as the automobile salute. It is a graceful and friendly gesture, especially as rendered by Schipa, and to me at least, held no hint of Fascism. I am convinced that it was meant only as a friendly response to the enthusiastic greeting of his public.

REBELS SHATTER OUTER DEFENSES OF SANTANDER

Four Italian Divisions Aid in Attack.

They reached the besieged and hungry city's outlying fortifications, pounded them with artillery, and occupied several important towns in the strategic Villacarriedo sector.

A communique from the Valencia national defense ministry, acknowledging the rebel advance, said the enemy had suffered severe losses in this sector before taking the towns. It quoted an Italian sergeant who was taken prisoner as asserting four divisions of regular Italian troops were operating on this front.

"Bad Copy" of Bilbao Defenses.

Of Santander's defenses, officers of Gen. Francisco Franco's rebel forces said somewhat scornfully that they were "a bad copy of Bilbao's iron ring." The rebels said government defenses were held largely by Asturians.

A surprise rebel assault, said a Salamanca communique, opened the way through strategic Villacarriedo and other important positions over hill towns, including Alceda and Ontaneda.

Franco's men claimed in taking Selaya, just south of Villacarriedo, that an entire garrison of prisoners and three tanks were captured in a dawn thrust.

[The Madrid government claimed capture of tanks and prisoners in battle near Ontaneda and Selaya.]

Highway in Range of Guns.

Storming a long line of cement fortifications through an artillery barrage, Franco's men claimed to have met little resistance in the offensive southeast of Torrelavega. Franco's artillery was within range of Torrelavega, and officers said the main road from Santander to Asturias would be under their guns before nightfall.

To the southeast, at Villacarriedo, the rebels were met by desperate attacks. Fighting continued all day. At dusk a swift rebel counter attack threw the government back from several key positions.

Here it was, too, that long absent government fighting planes made their first appearance in the Santander campaign. They appeared against a threatened raid of Franco's bombers, which retreated. The fighters then returned to machine gun rebel infantry.

With return of fair weather, air squadrons resumed activity at Salamanca. Eighteen government pursuit ships were downed in sky duels Saturday. Fourteen government planes were met by rebel ships in an attempted attack on Barcena.

POLICE CAMP 3D DAY AT UNSTABLE AUTOIST'S HOME

Police spent their third day yesterday waiting at the apartment of Alvin Hallam, alias Roscoe Chandler, 2226 Calumet avenue, who disappeared after he was ordered to stop driving his automobile on the ground that he is emotionally unstable.

Hallam, a WPA draftsman employed at the Chicago park district power house at 58th street and Cottage Grove avenue, was arrested July 8 while driving 77 miles an hour. Subsequently it was found he had registered his automobile under a fictitious name, which he also used when arraigned before Judge J. M. Braude in the Trafic court.

Regular Stop

Autumn note: Several hundred purple martins gathered at the rear of 6825 Paxton avenue yesterday and perched on telephoned wires, apparently awaiting missing members of the party. They meet there each year, observers say, before flying south to spend the winter in British Guiana and Brazil.

EX-CONVICT GANG SEIZED; SIX ADMIT RECENT THEFTS

Six young men, five of them former inmates of St. Charles reformatory, were arrested last night by Burnside police and confessed more than fifteen burglaries and several holdups in recent weeks.

Those held are Edward Wisnowski, 18 years old, 9354 University avenue; Joseph Dzugan, 20, 9315 Avalon avenue; Joseph Choykowski, 20, 9204 Avalon avenue; Morris Natusko, 20, 614 East 92d street; Mike Zaylik, 18, 9329 Greenwood avenue, all former inmates of St. Charles, and Richard Saylor, 29, 9223 Avalon avenue, who was placed on probation recently on a larceny charge. Policemen Fred Quiran and James Battle said the arrests were made after Mike Zaylik's brother, Joseph, reported the gang to police. Most of the burglaries were in south side stores. About $5,000 in loot was obtained.

CONTRACTOR BOUND, ROBBED.

Posing as an applicant for a job, a colored gunman yesterday invaded the small office of Bradford Hunting, 70 years old, 7013 Clyde avenue, a decorating contractor, at 4749 Cottage Grove avenue, bound him and robbed him of $53 and a $10 watch.

HALT ITALY'S WAR ON TRADE SHIPS, VALENCIA PLEADS

VALENCIA, Aug. 22.—(AP)—Expressing disgust with "the indifference of European diplomacy," the Spanish republic appealed to the world today against attacks it asserted Italian warships are making on its merchant marine.

This protest, the statement said, like the others "will be examined and discussed while Italian warships renew their criminal predatory activities. "It is clear that she [Italy] has transferred her imperial ambitions from Africa to Europe and will not stop with Spain."

Units of the Italian fleet were accused of wrecking four Spanish ships—the Campeador, the Conde de Abasolo, the Ciudad de Cadiz, and the Amuru. It was charged the shipwrecked crew of the Campeador was machine gunned after the attacking boat had been identified as Italian "so there would be no witnesses."

QUIZ 2 WOMEN ON MOONLIGHT MURDER IN PARK

Sweetheart and Widow of Victim Meet.

police, and Acting Lieut. James Colman, investigated the widow.

Mrs. Burns, they found, was already on a train bound for Chicago from Remsen, Ia., at the time of the murder. She had left home a month ago to visit her sister there. A spat with her husband had preceded her departure, but she said that had nothing to do with it.

"I never knew there was another woman in his life," said Mrs. Burns. "Until now, I never even heard of Miss Buehler."

Premonition Is Reported.

When Mrs. Burns left her relatives in Iowa Saturday night, eight hours before the shooting, she is reported to have remarked: "I have a feeling that I am needed at home." During her month's absence, however, she and Burns had not corresponded, she said. When she left home, she told police, domestic conditions were normal, except for the spat, and she left her son, Raymond, 15 years old, by a previous marriage, with Burns. Mrs. Burns' first husband, Leo Weichbrodt, died nine years ago, and she married Burns a year later.

Mrs. Burns told police that she had no idea why any one should kill her husband. She had no enemies, and he had none, she said. Burns, she declared had always been quite steady in his habits, so far as she knew. He was not wealthy, she pointed out, adding that he did not carry a large amount of insurance.

An inquest into Burns' murder will be held this forenoon at 425 Plymouth court. Mrs. Burns and Miss Buehler will appear as witnesses. Miss Buehler was held in technical police custody last night.

Girl Identifies Bandit

Albert Zuris, 37 years old, a paroled convict, who was arrested Saturday night as he fled after robbing a loop store, was identified yesterday by Russell Goodman, 3745 Armitage avenue, as the man for whom Goodman cashed a fraudulent money order on Aug. 4. Goodman cashed the order for $185 and then learned it had been raised from $1. Miss Charlotte Stein, 8020 Langley avenue, identified Zuris as the man who held up the Lanathan Hosiery Shop at 13 West Washington street.

Zuris was arrested on the platform of the Wabash-Adams elevated station. He admitted the holdup of another loop store Saturday and six other holdups during the week. Zuris was paroled from Joliet penitentiary on Feb. 29, 1936, after serving one year of a 1 to 14 year sentence for robbery and automobile theft. At the showup in the detective bureau yesterday he wept at the prospect of returning to prison.

OWNER OF BANDIT CAR BACK IN JAIL AFTER SHOWUP

Richard Ross, 823 Newport avenue, owner of an automobile in which three bandits fled Saturday night after shooting Martin Larsen, 51 years old, 3836 Southport avenue, in a $1,000 holdup at the Colonial Beverage company, 3250 Sheffield avenue, was returned to the Town Hall station lockup yesterday after appearing in the showup at the detective bureau.

When the license number of the car was traced to him, Ross insisted he had lent it to two friends shortly before the robbery. He clung to this story yesterday. Larsen, a certified public accountant, was auditing the books of the beverage company when it was robbed. One of the bandits clubbed him on the head with a gun, then shot him in the back of the neck. He was pronounced out of danger yesterday at the American hospital.

HELD ON CHARGE OF STRANGLING HIS FATHER, 73

New York, Aug. 22.—[Special.]—A son accused of strangling his father, after the latter's hilarious return from a drinking party early yesterday, was held without bail for murder today in Queens Felony court.

Richard Kelly, 40, the son, had not even been suspected until an autopsy was completed on the body of John Kelly, 73. The autopsy indicated death was due to strangulation, rather than natural causes, as police had first believed. The case was scheduled for hearing Wednesday.

The younger Kelly himself summoned police to the home which he shared with his father in Astoria. He told police that he found the older man on the floor and believed him unconscious. Examination showed that John Kelly was dead.

THREE-STORY FALL FATAL.

Mrs. Victoria Sylvestri, 36 years old, 1114 South May street, died yesterday in Mother Cabrini hospital of injuries incurred on Aug. 3 in a plunge from a third floor window of the building where she lived.

THE CHICAGO OF THE FUTURE CALLS FOR TRANSPORTATION

The "L" is above street traffic NOW!

● In the Chicago of the future, pedestrians will have the streets to themselves. Transportation systems will be elevated. There will be no traffic jams. No delays at street intersections. Traffic will flow smoothly, swiftly . . . unhindered.

That's Chicago of the future, as seen by the dreamers and planners of today. But do you realize that you can enjoy that kind of transportation right now? Instead of being something to look forward to, it is no farther away than your nearest "L" station! Now!

The "L" not only brings the people of Chicago modern transportation . . . but advanced transportation. It takes hundreds of thousands of people out of Chicago's congested streets each day . . . carries them swiftly and comfortably to their destinations on a private railroad right-of-way . . . furnishes dependable transportation day and night, Winter and Summer . . . regardless of weather. The "L" is not only unhindered by street surface traffic . . . it is also up where service remains uninterrupted by the weather. Neither flooded streets nor drifted snow can halt the "L"!

Tomorrow, start your day by going to the nearest of the more than 200 protected stations along the "L" right-of-way. Take one of the 5,383 "L" trains that are operated for your convenience every working day. Streak over jammed streets instead of fighting your way through them. Travel in comfort . . . free from nervous tension and the irritations of frequent starts and stops . . . relax . . . read your paper. Be up in the fresh air and sunshine instead of down in the monoxide belt. Arrive at your destination feeling refreshed instead of fatigued. Enjoy the transportation of tomorrow, today!

GET THERE! Ride the "L" THE FAST, COMFORTABLE WAY

LAYER-CAKE HEAT is caused when stop-and-go fuels permit the firebox to get cold between firings. The air in your rooms forms layers. Your head is hot while your feet are cold. This causes colds and their attendant ills. Coal or coke give constant warmth, banish Layer-Cake Heat.

STOKER SALES have reached an ALL-TIME HIGH

More families than ever are buying coal stokers. Sales are running 50% ahead of 1936—the record year! Here's why: Stokers give automatic heating. Yet, instead of paying a bigger fuel bill for this convenience, you actually pay less! A stoker fires itself, gives clean heat, keeps your rooms at the temperature you choose, and saves you money on fuel. No wonder people prefer coal stokers!

Like all coal and coke heating—stokers prevent Layer-Cake Heat.

Stop-and-go fuels let your furnace firebox get cold between firings. The air in your rooms stops flowing and forms layers—hot at your head, cold at your feet. That's Layer-Cake Heat. The family catches colds, which may lead to other ills.

Coal or coke prevent Layer-Cake Heat by keeping the firebox constantly heated. Warm air keeps flowing in your rooms, and layers can't form.

Get rid of Layer-Cake Heat this winter. Buy coal or coke now from your local coal merchant—and ask him about coal stokers. If you're not sure he's a member of the Chicago Coal Merchants Association, call STAte 9723.

SAVES LABOR—SAVES FUEL $—and like all coal or coke firing, abolishes Layer-Cake Heat. That's the modern coal stoker, the latest in automatic heating. Gives you even, clean heat for less money. Ask your local coal merchant.

NO MORE COLD FLOORS for your child to play on, once you get rid of Layer-Cake Heat. Protect your child's health with the even, steady heat and warm floors that coal or coke fires insure. It's better for everybody to live in the uniform temperature from solid fuels.

YOUR ARCHITECT'S ADVICE is valuable. You pay for it—so why not follow it when he advises you to include in your house plans a storage bin for solid fuels? That way, your choice of heating—or the choice of those to whom you might wish to rent or sell the house—will not be limited.

[TRIBUNE Photos.]

Thomas J. O'Malley Jr. of Oak Park and his son, Cornelius Evans O'Malley, 3 months old, also at picnic.

They danced jigs and sang "The Wearing of the Green" and told tales of the fighting kings of Erin. Everything was Irish from the fine flavor of the corned beef and cabbage to the green on the printed programs. And every man, woman, and child there was an O'Malley.

Thus did more than 3,000 members of the Clan O'Malley from Cook county and surrounding areas hold their first annual gathering and picnic yesterday in the Thatcher woods of the county forest preserve near River Forest. Big and little O'Malleys, fat and lean O'Malleys, young and old O'Malleys, O'Malleys by marriage.

Policeman John J. O'Malley, 5502 South Halsted street, was the biggest O'Malley there. He is 6 feet 4 inches tall and weighs 275 pounds.

HAPPY FESTIVAL MUSICIANS LEAVE CITY FOR HOMES

They'll Be Back Next Year; Plans Already Made.

BY PHILIP MAXWELL.

Happy over their participation in the eighth Chicagoland Music festival, which was given before 80,000 spectators in Soldiers' field Saturday night, thousands of musicians left for their homes in 199 cities, towns, and villages in America and Canada late Saturday night and all day yesterday.

They said they would be back to Chicago next summer to take part in giving to America its greatest outdoor musical event.

Singing groups were heard as they boarded trains, buses, and boats and several bands and drum corps gave impromptu hotel lobby concerts before checking out.

An Outpouring of Fine Music.

Speaking before 100 winning members of the Egyptian Choral club mixed chorus at their annual postfestival dinner yesterday noon in the La Salle hotel, Charles Wakefield Cadman, eminent composer, and a guest conductor Saturday night in Soldiers' field, said: "Never in my life have I ever heard such an outpouring of fine music from so many people. The Chicagoland Music festival is the outstanding American contribution to the promotion of better music for the masses."

The festival management already has announced several plans for next year. The festival luncheon which was attended by 1,200 persons in the Silver Forest room of the Drake hotel will be repeated but will have to be moved to a larger dining hall. A preliminary contest for out-of-Cook county vocalists will be held on Friday before the festival Saturday and the choral finals will be divided and held simultaneously in two large auditoriums.

Winners Get Engagements.

Both Miss Louisa Hoe, soprano, and Richard C. Schreiber, baritone, winning "best woman singer" and "best man singer," in the festival contests and who thrilled Saturday night's audience, were awarded paid appearances at the concert. Representing the Chicago Rotary club, Homer Lange, entertainment chairman, engaged Mr. Schreiber for a recital tomorrow noon at the club's luncheon at the Sherman hotel, and Henry Weber, general musical director of the festival, hired both singers for an early engagement with the W-G-N Symphony orchestra.

Newspapers coöperating with Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., in the 1937 festival were the Canton, Ill., Daily Ledger; Burlington, Ia., Hawkeye-Gazette; De Kalb, Ill., Daily Chronicle; La Porte, Ind., Herald-Argus; Memphis, Tenn., Commercial-Appeal; Minneapolis, Minn., Tribune; Racine, Wis., Journal-Times; Stevens Point, Wis., Daily Journal; Watseka, Ill., Iroquois County Times; and the Waukegan, Ill., News-Sun.

EX-MODEL BELIEVED 'KIDNAPED' RETURNS HOME FROM A 'VISIT'

Seattle, Wash, Aug. 22.—(AP)—While sheriff's deputies, state and city police searched for her in the belief she had been abducted, Mrs. John Gooch, 29, former San Francisco model, returned home today to report she "had been visiting friends."

Sheriff William Severyns said the kidnaping theory had been based on a report by two youths that Mrs. Gooch, the former Elva Thompson, was "forcibly escorted from her home by two men."

CHARTER JUBILEE LAKES CARNIVAL TO OPEN TONIGHT

Music by Rubinoff Will Start Performances.

The music of Rubinoff and his violin will lift the water curtain tonight on Chicago's Charter Jubilee lakefront show, Carnival of the Lakes.

The thousands of spectators who are expected to fill the Lagoon theater and overflow onto the sloping banks of the arena are promised a brilliant water show. It will be repeated each night through Sunday. Gayly decorated and lighted yachts, schooners, and craft anchored in the Burnham park lagoon will serve as background for the carnival spectacle.

Two Floating Stages Built.

Two floating stages have been built in the lagoon, east of Soldiers' field, and there two shows will open each evening at 8:30 o'clock. On the north side tonight, Neptune will arise from the water to be welcomed by Mayor Kelly, and presented a golden key to the city. At the same time Miss Faraday Benedict, 6720 Bennett avenue, will be crowned queen of the carnival. King Neptune and his queen will be enthroned on the royal barge from which nightly they will open each show and rule the water festival.

On successive evenings Rubinoff will appear at the north stage to signal the beginning of the show. He will be followed by the Mermaidonia, a disappearing water ballet, directed by Lottie Mayer and Diana Huebert; a fur revue, and a floor show with radio, screen, and stage stars.

On the south stage, the Miss Chicago contest for the Edward J. Kelly trophy will be held, with the finals next Sunday. On Saturday and Sunday evenings the finals of the western talent parade will be held, the winning boy and girl to receive free trips to Hollywood for screen tests.

In the south lagoon show each night the United States coast guard will give capsize drills, canoe clubs will perform, and there will be cutter races by the United States Naval Reserve, Sea Scouts and junior life guards. Each night Melville Carr, life saving director of the American Red Cross, will give exhibitions of surf board riding and water skiing.

Also on the south stage six Otomi Indians from Pahuatan, remote Mexican village, will present their ceremonial flying dance, in which they whirl eighty feet downward with the unwinding of their ropes.

An aerial circus; a Parade of Champions—procession of famous yachts which have won prizes on the Great Lakes—and fifteen minutes of fireworks shot off from Northerly Island will end each program.

TUG GOES DOWN AFTER CRASH IN LITTLE CALUMET

A tug pushing two empty barges down the Little Calumet river sank yesterday after apparently striking an obstruction near Halsted street and 129th place. Melvin Hulett of Beardstown, Ill., owner of the tug, who was at the wheel, wakened five persons who were sleeping in the cabin. The six swam to the nearest barge and climbed aboard by cables attached from the tug. The tug and barges were on a return trip to Beardstown after delivering two loads of gravel to the Material Service company in South Chicago. The Homewood county highway police began an investigation of the accident.

FINDS FIGHT ON SYPHILIS MOVES RAPIDLY AHEAD

Surgeon General Gratified by Progress.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 22.—(AP)—Astonishing progress is being made in the drive to control syphilis, Dr. Thomas Parran, surgeon general of the public health service, said today.

Returning from a transcontinental inspection of public health service laboratories, state health commissions, and marine hospitals, he said he was "agreeably astounded" by the intensity of the campaign.

Cites Chicago Campaign.

"The current campaign in Chicago is, of course, the most prominent undertaking now being carried out," he said, and it "gratifyingly shows that the fight is moving out of the sphere of thought into definite action."

The 90 per cent favorable vote in Chicago's poll to determine whether citizens desire free blood tests represents, he added, "a higher degree of community agreement than could be obtained on any other question."

"These results should be taken by every health officer in the nation as an indication that the public is demanding a concerted plan of action," the surgeon general said. "Also the specific results in Chicago should further show to what a remarkable degree private physicians and health department officials can work together against a common enemy."

Brings Costs Into Open.

The Chicago poll, in addition to dramatizing the disease as a personal problem, is also making possible for the first time a study of the annual cost of syphilis to the taxpayer, he added. The expense of making the blood tests and treating the cases discovered will be considerable, but will be only a fraction of the cost which would result if they were left untreated, he explained.

Hunts Immunity Secret.

Window Rock, Ariz., Aug. 22.—(AP)—While the federal and state governments continue their educational drive against syphilis Dr. W. W. Peter is searching for the secret of fundamental immunity of the Navajo Indians to the disease.

"Although we have only a limited knowledge, so far, concerning syphilis infections within the tribe," he explained, "instances are rare where the disease has progressed to the insidious final stage where it attacks the nervous system."

SUNDAY PICKETS STOP SHOWING OF MOVIE 'ECSTASY'

No strike of the kind involving labor union differences was involved when yesterday forty men pickets began patroling the sidewalk in front of the Hamlin theater at 3826 West Madison street.

The men were members of the Holy Name society of St. Mel Roman Catholic church, 22 North Kildare avenue. They were protesting the showing of a motion picture film "Ecstasy," a European production advertised for adults only.

The picketeers had been in action only a few minutes when Fillmore street police sent a detail to investigate. Msgr. F. A. Purcell, pastor of the church, meanwhile had conferred with Morris A. Saltin, manager of the theater. Mr. Saltin readily agreed not to show the picture and obtained two other features which were substituted for "Ecstacy." After this change the picketers dispersed.

NAVAL RESERVE AIR BASE WILL BE COMMISSIONED

Rear Admiral Hayne Ellis, commandant of the Ninth Naval district, announced yesterday that the new naval reserve air base at Curtiss airport, near Glenview, will be commissioned officially Saturday afternoon. Prominent public officials have been invited to the ceremony which will be open to the public.

A ground and air show will follow the formal commissioning exercises. The program includes a review of the Great Lakes naval unit with a musical flag drill. Naval reserve planes from the bases at Kansas City, St. Louis, Minneapolis, Detroit, and Chicago, will be in the air show.

The new base has been completed at a cost of approximately $100,000.

500 TO RECEIVE DEGREES AT U. OF CHICAGO FRIDAY

More than 500 candidates will receive degrees at the 189th convocation at the University of Chicago next Friday afternoon in the Rockefeller Memorial chapel.

The convocation sermon was delivered in the chapel yesterday by Dr. William A. Irwin, professor of Old Testament language and literature at the university.

Miss Patricia Beesley, 18 years old, 1154 East 56th street, daughter of Thomas Q. Beesley, will receive both bachelor's and master's degrees in English. Though not a high school graduate, she entered the university in 1934.

BRITAIN RENEWS CLAIMS TO THREE PACIFIC ISLANDS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 22.—With an eye on future Pacific air bases, Great Britain, it was announced in London tonight, has "reaffirmed" the annexation of three uninhabited islands practically midway between New Zealand and South America.

The islands are the Henderson, northeast of Pitcairn, and Ducie and Oeno, both east of Pitcairn. All three are described as having fine lagoons suitable for use by seaplanes. Annexation by Britain was officially reaffirmed by the cruiser Leander, which sent landing parties ashore to fix notice on boards and hoist flags confirming British ownership.

According to present agreement the bases of the Pan-American San Francisco to New Zealand air route is all on American territory with the exception of the New Zealand terminal. The reaffirmation of Britain's claims to the three Pacific islands is regarded here as significant.

7 MEN INJURED AS FLAMES RAZE 2 BEACH HOTELS

Asbury Park, N. J., Aug. 22.—(AP)—The smouldering ruins of two resort hotels, swept by a $200,000 fire which injured seven, blocked a search for possible victims today as firemen extinguished sporadic bursts of flame on the two sites.

Fire Chief William S. Taggart said attempts at salvage and a minute search of the ruins would be delayed at least two days at the site of the leveled new Monmouth hotel, but that a preliminary search might be made sooner of the partly standing Park Lane hotel.

Three firemen, a policeman, and three volunteer rescuers were injured by smoke and falling timbers as the fire, which started about 9:15 p. m., swept through the adjacent buildings and endangered eight other nearby hotels.

One hundred and fifty were evacuated from the Monmouth, 70 from the Park Lane, and more than 1,000 from the others. Police reported most of the 1,000 returned to their rooms.

Perfect Curves Held Handicap to Film Career

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Aug. 22.—[Special.]—Carol Wyndham, who, as Nadine Doré, won the beauty contest titles of "Miss Southern California" in 1927; "Miss California" in 1929, and "Miss North America" in 1931, was espied playing a featured bit in the Carole Lombard-Fredric March picture, "Nothing Sacred," at Selznick's. Miss Wyndham has her first speaking part in this film.

Commenting on her long apprenticeship as a film dancer and part of the "beauty background" in ever so many pictures, this actress, now 24, uttered the following sage remark: "Too good a shape is a detriment for a girl in the movies. If a girl wants to be a star, it is her personality that she must make noticeable.

"After I won those beauty contests I thought for a while that I was wonderful. But a couple of years in the movies knocks that feeling out of you," she continued.

Miss Wyndham entered her first beauty contest at one of the Los Angeles beaches when 13.

Beverly Roberts, blonde and curly-headed, agreed to answer some questions between "takes" in her current story, "Expensive Husbands," at Warner's. The question one young woman asked was this: "How does it feel to be famous?"

Beverly Roberts.

Miss Roberts replied, "I'll not subscribe to the idea I am famous, because the way they talk about fame in Hollywood it makes me think of flagpole sitters and marathon dancers. But, seriously, I guess I would now be called a 'success' as a film actress. Even that term ought to be milder; but, at any rate, I have improved and my salary has improved and they spell my name in larger type than they used to. But it all has happened so gradually that I never have actually been aware of any moment of thrill or of realization.

"The feeling of being in demand in one's chosen profession makes me feel pleased and important. But there hasn't been any ecstatic thrill such as young girls dream of feeling," she added.

She said she guessed that her "biggest" moments were when Warner studio took up her second and third options, and when she went into the lead Bette Davis had vacated in "God's Country and the Woman" eighteen months ago.

Norma Shearer will at last make her return to films, playing Marie Antoinette, with Peter Lorre as Louis, at Metro studio. Miss Shearer has not appeared in films since her husband, Irving Thalberg, died in September, 1936.

Anna Sten, whose latest feature film here was in Sam Goldwyn's "Wedding Night" in 1934, is set for the lead rôle opposite Edward G. Robinson in Metro's "The Last Gangster," provided her husband, Dr. Eugene Franke, who also intends to produce and direct her individual starring films, can arrange the schedule of his Grand National picture, "With Pleasure, Madam," to fit the schedule of the more expensive Metro picture.

'Brother Rat,' Breezy Comedy of Cadet Life, Crisply Acted

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

The new theatrical season sent an advance guard, a month or more ahead of schedule, into the Selwyn theater last night in the form of a blithe comedy of student life in cadet uniforms called "Brother Rat." It presents a light-hearted picture of the regulations of Virginia Military institute and their infraction; it deals with college lads and their girl friends in a breezy adolescent style, and it provides laughter enough to give patrons of the drama a thoroughly diverting evening.

The play has been an established hit in New York for months, and its Broadway reputation is admirably sustained by this company, which was planned for a Chicago run. The cast has been skilfully selected for military college types; the acting is crisp and assured, and the atmosphere of the barrack-rooms and parade grounds of V. M. I., a school which follows the traditions of West Point, is presented with apparent authority.

"Brother Rat" may be called modern in its point of view and its recognition of the fact that collegians are no strangers to sex problems; but its pattern is the standard one that has been used in campus comedies for generations. Its villian is the school's code of rules and the professors [here called officers] who enforce them rigidly. Its heroes are the classic three musketeers, here called Billy and Dan and Bing, trying to break as many laws as possible and yet get their diplomas on commencement day.

Dan is a sober, ironical athlete [catcher on the baseball team], trying to get along. Bing is the star pitcher, but otherwise slow-witted and unable to keep out of trouble. Billy is the plotter, the outlaw, and the clown of the trio, gabby as a master of ceremonies and ingenious in wild-eyed schemes. At the end of four years, his roommates are ready to certify that he has dementia praecox, but they follow him in his eccentric enterprises like "brother rats" tried and true.

This phrase demands an explanation, since it forms the title of the play. In the first place, a "rat" at V. M. I., and other military colleges of the south, is a freshman. At the end of his first year he is admitted into fraternal relationship with the upper classmen in a ceremony which involves ritualistic paddling with a broom, and thus he and they become "brother rats" until graduation or expulsion.

The commandant's daughter proves to be the good angel for the musketeers when their sky is darkest and Bing, the scapegoat, is in particular woe because he has married secretly and become a father. The girl is smuggled into their room to coach the dumb-bell Bing for his chemistry examination, and this risky adventure brings peace and diplomas to the worried gang.

The characterizations are excellent, except for the tendency, common in plays of this type, to scale college students down toward high school manners and mentality. The performance is led by a merry wight named Edwin L. Phillips, who proves himself a clever comedian as the effervescent Billy.

BY ANNA NANGLE.

Here we have everything but an earthquake. Scotland Yard, the Spanish revolution, missing pearls, a stolen diamond necklace, a crooked countess, shootings and impersonations, a doped detective, a drunken sea captain, a couple of pretty, mysterious women, and a harmonica band.

Don Ameche is an English detective vacationing in Spain. Meets a girl, falls in love with her, and gets orders to arrest her as the revolution breaks. She's accused of stealing a pearl necklace, and in evading the sleuth is joined by a soldier suspected of lifting a valuable diamond necklace. They dope the not-so-clever Mr. Egan and, joined by still another mysterious character, Miss Beaumont, try to make their getaway. They're captured and escape several times and are chased on the high seas before the eventually happy ending.

Mr. Ameche puts a good deal of vigor into his rôle, but overacts a bit. When not quite at ease his voice becomes distinctly nasal. Miss Young is pretty and flip, which is about all her part as Myra Cooper requires.

I liked John Carradine as Capt. Delmar and Harold Huber is sufficiently sinister as a jewel thief.

Borrah Minevitch and his gang are dragged in for no good reason that I could see. They're unnecessary to the story, with Borrah making a play for the ladies of the cast in a village-idiot manner.

"Love Under Fire" is not quite so funny as it's cracked up to be and rather tiresome in spots. There are a few clever twists to the story, but much of it is confusing and long winded.

Soft Woolens Style Dresses of Distinction

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Shoppers used to snoop for days trying to find distinctive one piece dresses, spring, summer or fall—one piece affairs that had some cleverness somewhere in the details—and hoped against hope for smart streamlines, sleeves and necklines, and, of course, flattering colors and good fabrics.

Designers with ears to the ground have at last presented gratifying supplies. In a shop known for swanky coats of the travel and sports type we found an exciting collection of one piece dresses.

These are soft woolens. Some are smooth and of a small basket weave texture. Others are fuzzy with a gray haze over the color. There is a brand new matelesse wool effect, a sort of a gauzelike silk pattern against a smooth, dull wool. Another material is a slick, luxurious suedelike wool. All of these fabrics fashion dresses of great distinction. And all prices, even the highest, are pleasant.

Two new colors, the most delectable raspberry red, almost an American Beauty red, and a blue called stone blue, are tops. The stone blue is a made to order tone for blondes and coppertops. See it streamlined and accented with pale beige pigskin flat buttons and belt or the model with silver nailhead trimmed pockets and decorative studded belt.

See the raspberry reds made with a gently front flared skirt, an intricately draped bodice top and a chain belt with an assortment of gold coins to jingle merrily, even when you're broke, or the reds contrasted with a bit of the stone blue in a chiffon pocket handkerchief or a narrow suede belt. Or the "time" dress, in either blue, or red, with the clock round chest pockets with the time in silver dots and the hands in silver slits.

All of these dresses are superlatively well made, beautifully seamed and detailed miracles of distinctive simplicity. And the price marks are low.

Katharine Cornell to Start World Tour in Capital Next March

New York, Aug. 22.—(AP)—Katharine Cornell's world tour will open in Washington next March. Then the company of forty will tour Canada, England, France, Russia, Germany, Italy, Egypt, South Africa, Australia, Philippines, Hawaii, and South America for eighteen months.

Miss Cornell's will be one of the first English speaking répertoires of four plays to go around the world. If successful, she should rank as great, if not greater, than Sarah Bernhardt, the Frenchwoman, and Eleonora Duse, the Italian, both of whom made world tours.

Miss Cornell will play "Saint Joan," "Candida," "Romeo and Juliet," and "The Barretts of Wimpole Street," her producer and husband, Guthrie McClintic said today.

Front Views and Profiles By June Provines

PAUL DRAPER had started to dance—tapping to a 17th century minuet, lithe, rhythmic, his movements sculptured and swift, his tapping irresistible, his handsome face stretched into the white mask that adds a strange detachment to his superb performance.

Tap Dancer—Individualists—Description—Personal—Observation.

"He's way over the heads of this night club crowd," whispered the man at my left.

"He lives on rare meat and wine," whispered the lady across the table in the white tulle, shoulderless gown, its bodice topped with valley lilies. "Likes steaks three or four years old, cooked very rare."

The performer finished the minuet number and there was a roar of applause. People at the edges of the room were standing to see and applaud and the long-distance drinkers from the bar had come into the room to watch and applaud. The gentleman who had said the performance was way over the heads of the crowd adjusted his eyeglasses and looked astonished.

"He's an anachronism in a night club," he worried. "He doesn't belong here at all."

Paul danced to another Handel composition, then did his conception of the late George Gershwin's "Tain't Necessarily So" from "Porgy and Bess." After that he tapped "The Blue Danube"—at the crowd's request.

There was no sound in the room except the rhythm of his tapping and the accompaniment; the impersonal white face topped by vivid hair, drained of expression, and the strained smile added to the classic quality of his performance.

Ten minutes later he was at the table, his tan trousers and tunic exchanged for dark trousers, a white linen coat and a shirt open at the throat, handsome, leisurely, poised.

"Raw meat? Wine?" inquired the host.

"A glass of milk, please," answered Draper.

"I told you he doesn't belong in a night club," said the gentleman with the eyeglasses.

THIS morning we give you—for the individualists' corner—the man who rides south on Ogden avenue every morning in an expensive car, license number 334-007, shaving with an electric razor while driving. Also the ice cream vendor in Lincoln park, reported by Harold Welcher, with a midget radio on his bicycle.

REMEMBER the ad in the personal column that ran for days asking Edith please to come home. It ceased to appear Aug. 15, we mentioned in a recent column, and speculated as to whether Edith finally called "Julia" or her husband, or whether they gave up in despair. The answer appears in another advertisment. They're trying another language now. The ad reads: Edith—Stipo svege dobro zovipe oca. Hedwig and Julia. Ph. Rep. ——."

Alumni Start Rush for Seats at Grid Games

BY JUDITH CASS.

CERTAIN sign that autumn is almost here is the arrival of ticket application blanks for the football season in the morning's mail. Those alumni and football fans who have received their notices from the University of Chicago and Northwestern university already are checking on dates with their friends and are rushing through their bids for seats as near the 50 yard line as possible, since both universities have planned exceptionally fine schedules.

With Princeton coming out here to play Chicago on Oct. 16, that date, of course, becomes a red letter one for alumni of both schools. Chicago's first home game is with the University of Wisconsin on Oct. 9. The Ohio State game on Oct. 30 and the Beloit game on Nov. 13 also will be played here. Out of town will be the Vanderbilt game on Oct. 2, the Michigan game Nov. 6, and the Illinois game Nov. 20.

N. U. Team to Play Five Games at Home.

Five of Northwestern's eight games are to be played in Evanston. These home games include the Iowa State, Oct. 2; Michigan, Oct. 9; Purdue, Oct. 16; Illinois, Nov. 6, and Notre Dame, Nov. 20.

The Illinois game will mark the annual alumni homecoming and Northwestern's famous Purple ball will be held the eve of the Notre Dame game. The Ohio State game Oct. 23 will be played in Columbus, the Wisconsin game Oct. 30 at Madison, and the Minnesota game Nov. 13 at Minneapolis.

A delightful accompaniment to the most important of the home games at Northwestern will be the teas which President and Mrs. Walter Dill Scott always hold afterward at their hospitable home in Evanston. The Scotts arrived at home Friday after spending a month at Lake Placid. They stopped at Mackinac on their way back.

President and Mrs. Robert M. Hutchins of the University of Chicago are not returning from their vacation abroad until early in September. They sailed July 5, and have been motoring in England and Scotland.

Lord-Beaton Wedding Party Is Announced.

Invitations have gone out from Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Lord to the wedding of their daughter, Suzanne, to Lindsay E. Beaton at 8:30 o'clock in the evening, Sept. 8, at St. Mark's church, Evanston, with a reception following at the Country Club of Evanston.

The bride will be attended by her sister, Mrs. Robert Bentley, as matron of honor, and by three cousins, Mrs. Palmer Beaudette of Carmel, Cal.; Miss Mary Cook, and Mrs. J. H. Sheldon Lee Jr., and by Miss Gertrude Matthews of Kenilworth as bridesmaids.

The bridegroom, son of David Beaton of Evanston and of Mrs. John Garrett of Tucson, Ariz., will have Albert O. Snite of Highland Park as best

"Find This Girl"

BY ROY VICKERS [Copyright; 1937; By Roy Vickers.]

SYNOPSIS.

Bessie Mersand, a nurse, is acquitted of the charge of administering a fatal dose of medinal to an elderly patient. Gwynneth Bentley and her lover, Roy Gleason, attended the trial. Later Gwynneth meets Bessie, who has changed her name to Mathews, and, waiving references, gives her a job caring for Gwynneth's invalid husband. She plans to kill her husband and plant the guilt on Bessie. Medinal tablets for Gwynneth's sleeplessness are placed in Bessie's charge. Gwynneth hides a valuable jeweled dagger, then puts the ground tablets in her husband's food. She then gives Bessie the day off and sends away Bessie's luggage to make it appear that Bessie has fled. In London Bessie meets her friend, Jim Watkin. Jim has heard of the crime over the ticker at his club and is torn by doubts of Bessie's innocence. When Bessie boards the train to return to her post, Jim, assured of her innocence, drags her out and tells her what has happened.

INSTALMENT XIII.

PRIVATE SLEUTHING.

Jim helped Bessie into a sitting position.

"We can't talk here. I'll get you into a taxi as soon as you feel able to walk off the platform and take you home."

"I think—I could walk now, if you'll help me," she faltered.

As soon as they heard her voice the ticket collector and the policeman moved away.

He gave her a little longer, then took her at her word and half carried her across the platform and down the steps to the taxi-rank.

"Porlock Mansions, off Russell square," he ordered.

"You said you were taking me home. But I have no home. If I can't go back to Uplands. Why can't I? You said Mr. Bentley is——dead?"

He was not yet ready to talk to her. A few minutes ago he had been utterly convinced of her innocence. She would not have risked getting into the nonstop train to Suddington if she had been guilty.

Or perhaps she was fool enough to think that her innocent air would save her from arrest.

She would not have fainted if she had known all the time that Bentley was dead.

But was it a genuine faint?

"Are you—are you taking me to the police, Jim?"

For some reason that hurt him.

"Do I mean as little as that? Can't you bring yourself to look on me as a friend?"

"I do. But——you say he died of an overdose of medinal?" Judging by her voice she was still a little dazed but rapidly recovering.

"It's thought that he did. And, of course, after what happened at

"Sorry to disturb you, Mrs. Bentley."

Brighton they'll suspect you. They'll almost certainly arrest you on suspicion. That's why you must not go back. They're not going to arrest you if I can help it. And I think I can help it. Now will you trust me, Bessie?"

"Of course I trust you, Jim!"

"Then just do as I tell you without arguing."

The rest of the journey was made in silence. When the taxi stopped outside Porlock Mansions he told the driver to wait. Porlock Mansions was a well-built but by no means luxurious block. It boasted no night porter, so he was able to get her into the flat without any one seeing her.

"Nerve steady?" he asked.

"Quite! But I'd like to know where I am."

"In my flat." He waited a moment and added. "You must stay here until I come and see you tomorrow morning. Go to bed and stay in bed. No one will come. If the telephone rings, don't answer it."

"Where are you going to sleep?" she asked. "I'm turning you out of your flat."

"I'm not going to have any sleep. I shall be on the move until I see you again. And now I'm going. Good night."

"Jim! Do you think I—killed—Mr. Bentley?"

A little while ago she had said that she trusted him. The wide-set eyes were looking up into his. The eyes of the nicest girl in the world? Still he did not know. But he knew now that he could not lie to her.

"I don't know whether you killed Bentley or not," he answered with deliberation. "But I'm betting my life's happiness that you're innocent. And if you are, we'll fight the world together. If you're guilty, I expect I shall help you to escape because I'm a fool."

"How will you know?"

"I'm going to start finding out—right now."

Not trusting himself further, he slammed out of the flat and told the waiting taxi-driver to take him to the Blue Emerald garage.

Here he took out his own two-seater.

At a quarter to one he was turning into the drive of Uplands. The house was in darkness, but this troubled him not at all.

He hammered on the door until Gwynneth Bentley appeared in her dressing-gown.

"Sorry to disturb you, Mrs. Bentley."

"You needn't apologize. Who are you?"

"Me?" he echoed in astonishment. "Why, I'm James Watkin! I see the name means nothing to you. Better say, Mrs. Bentley, that I'm the only man in the world who knows that nurse didn't murder your husband."

For a fraction of a second only Gwynneth's eyelids flickered, but that was quite enough for Jim Watkin.

"I guess we'd better get together," he grinned. "Can I come in?"

Without a word Gwynneth Bentley stood aside and let him enter.

Jim Watkin's instinct, of which he constantly boasted, had some real existence. It warned him now that Mrs. Bentley would be a hard nut to crack.

She led him into the library and motioned him to a chair. She sat opposite him, cool and dignified. He wanted her to begin, but she beat him by her unruffled patience.

He had been studying the safe, remembering that afternoon when Bessie had obtained a duplicate key from that crooked locksmith in Paston alley, saying that Mrs. Bentley wanted it for her jewel-case.

"You keep your jewelry in there, I suppose?" he asked.

"No. In my bedroom, in its own case."

A possible point against Bessie.

"Are you going to ask me all those wearisome questions the police have already asked?"

He shook his head.

"I know all the answers except that one, Mrs. Bentley. I don't touch clews—I go for character. Is she a good-looking girl?"

"Very."

"Any admirers?"

"N-no."

Watkin noticed the slight hesitation and jumped on it.

"Then in the two months she's been with you there's been no man hanging round her?" He had not forgotten what Bessie had told him about Roy Gleason, whose record Watkin had looked up.

"I don't think so."

"Perhaps the servants will remember."

Another little flicker of the long eyelashes. The servants, of course, would remember the frequent visits of Gleason.

"There was a man named Gleason who seemed a little interested, but you could hardly call it more——"

"Not Roy Gleason?"

"Then you know him?"

"Of course I do!" said Watkin carefully. "It's my hobby to know men like that. He was in the Guards for a short time, then sent in his papers—for the good of the Guards. He's an aristocratic gigolo of the worst type—always sponging on some woman or other."

"How dare you!" flashed Gwynneth, taken completely off her guard.

"Sorry!" grinned Watkin. "Don't tell me he's a friend of yours—a nasty bit of work like that!"

Gwynneth was breathing deeply and Watkin was watching her. So Gleason had come for her!

Let Your Son Realize That You Love Him

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

[Copyright; 1937; By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

Mothers and fathers who have grown children with little ones of their own often have to look on hopelessly at the young parents' mismanagement and injustice, and even unkindness. Quite often they appeal to me to send along some sort of printed matter that may open the eyes of these misguided young parents.

Recently the particular thing about which these solicitous onlookers have written me is that the father is showing real severity in dealing with the children, but particularly with his boys.

I know many men who think that in order to make a man of a boy he must be raised with strictness. They think he should not be shown affection nor leniency of any kind. Their idea is, in substance, to "treat 'em rough." A daughter they handle in an entirely different way, a little girl baby from the beginning is indulged by such a father—petted, caressed, and frequently spoiled to a great degree.

Never was there a more mistaken idea. "Treat 'em rough and make 'em tough" may sound virile and musculine, but it just doesn't work out that way. And many a boy has been made sensitive and unhappy and resentful, and many a youth, come of age, actually driven from home as the result of such treatment.

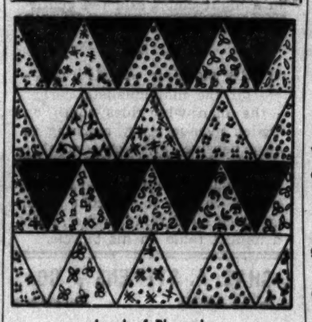
It doesn't make a boy soft or a sissy to give him understanding, and to let him know that you both enjoy and love him. There is an inherent masculinity in a boy which "will out"—will manifest itself, even under a too tender treatment—not that I advocate that extreme, either. And many a boy has, by force of circumstance, been brought up by his mother or several feminine relatives and become the manliest of boys and men.

Another point is this: That while a father may believe in "treat 'em rough and make 'em tough" he also is greatly affected if his boy is not polite and chivalrous as he grows older. Well, he can't have it coming and going.

Although this may not sound to you like an emotional article, it is a fervent plea on my part to those fathers who believe in strictness and even coldness toward their boys and warmth and overindulgence toward their girls to change their angle and their actions, too.

In ending, let me just mention to them the fact that I have had a number of youths and grownup men tell me that they never knew until they became older that their fathers loved them at all.

Egyptian Flavor Pervades One of Oldest Quilts



Land of Pharaoh.

Patterns of this design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

BY NANCY CABOT.

"Land of Pharaoh" is one of the oldest quilt patterns. It has been given two other titles equally Egyptian in flavor—namely, "Sphinxes" and "The Pyramids." The distinguishing features of the patterns depend upon the size of the patches, the color arrangements, and the manner in which the blocks are set together. "Land of Pharaoh" is used as an all-over design and a combination of light and dark colors with prints in alternate rows. The twelve inch blocks may be set together to form rows across the quilt, or the patterns of the block may be reversed so that a checkered effect is created.

Printed Frock Plus Bolero

GIRL'S BOLERO DRESS.

This little printed dress for youngsters has an attractive bolero jacket to accompany it. It's an ideal outfit for the beginning school days, and every fashion-conscious young miss will be delighted with its styling. The frock has a plain shirtwaist top with buttoned closing, and a simple collar. A tied belt accents the waistline. A released plait gives fullness to the plain skirt. The bolero has fly-away sides and puffed sleeves, and may be worn with other frocks, of course.

Challis, sheer woolen and heavy silks, as well as some cottons, especially in dark shades, will make up well. One lovely combination is that of a printed woolen dress with harmonizing or contrasting velveteen bolero.

A diagrammed sewing chart accompanies this pattern, so you should have no difficulty in making this outfit. Its inexpensiveness will save you many pennies when you are making your youngster's school clothes collection.

Style No. 3102 is designed for sizes 4, 6, 8, 10, 12 and 14 years. Size 8 requires 1⅞ yards of 39 inch material for the dress, with ¾ yard of 39 inch material for the bolero.

Hands Quickly Show Effects if Neglected

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

It's surprising how quickly the sun can dry out the natural oils in the hands and give to the skin a parched, drawn look.

Lunching with two women who are very fastidious about their hands, always careful to keep the skin soft and smooth with frequent applications of nourishing creams and lotions, to say nothing of their weekly manicure and daily routine care, I was surprised to find those usually well cared for hands looking somewhat the worse for wear.

They had just returned from several weeks at the seashore where much time had been spent out of doors, on the sand, in bathing, playing golf and tennis, and they confessed they had been negligent and realized they were now paying the price for that negligence. They just hadn't fed the skin the amount of creams and softening lotions they should have, or that they had been in the habit of doing when at home and leading their regular busy lives.

On such jaunts as these women took, women generally are careful to apply protective creams to the face before going out into the sun, but too often they are careless about giving that same thought and care to the hands, with the result that their hands show the neglect sooner.

So, if you plan to spend any time in the sun, on the sand, in bathing, or when you go out for a round of golf, or a game of tennis, don't forget your hands. Coddle them a bit. If you have been neglectful, give them extra care until you get them back into shape.

When you apply that extra dab of cream to keep the face from burning, masssage some of it into the hands. At night be generous in your application of a nourishing cream, and if necessary sleep with gloves on. It's the easiest and quickest way to offset the effects of exposure. The cream lubricates, offsetting the dryness, and at the same time softens and smooths out any rough spots. Every woman, young or old, who is interested in sports and spends considerable time out of doors will do well to apply cream generously and wear gloves to bed at night. Have the gloves sufficiently loose so they won't be binding or in any way annoying.

When you apply the cream, and before donning the gloves, work it well into the skin, with a kneading process. Wring the hands together, and massage the fingers. You improve the circulation. If for no other reason than that hands can't be concealed, you want to keep them looking their best at all times.

Make your hair sparkle! Learn from an expert how to care for it properly. Get a copy of Antoinette Donnelly's booklet, "Bring Out the Beauty in Your Hair." On sale at the Tribune Public Service Offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower. Price, 5 cents. By postpaid mail, 7 cents.

Culbertson's "Gold Book of Bidding and Play"

RESPONSES TO ASKING BIDS.

[Copyright: 1937: By Ely Culbertson.]

How a singleton or the king of the asked suit is shown: For all practical purposes, a singleton and the king of the same suit are equivalent from the standpoint of controling the second lead of a suit.

A very ingenious and time saving device is used to show these second round controls: an ace of any other but the asked suit is shown. For instance:

South	North
1 spade	3 spades
4 diamonds [asking bid]	4 hearts

Four hearts by North shows two things at the same time, the heart ace and second round control in diamonds. By a negative inference, the four heart bid also denies any other ace in the hand because with two outside aces and a fit, North's response would have been not four hearts but four no trump. If, instead of the heart ace, North held the club ace, his response would have been five clubs.

With the trump ace [in this case, the spade ace] and second round diamond control, North must skip one round by bidding five spades over the asked four diamond bid. In this manner the sign-off inferences [shown by a four spade bid] are sharply distinguished from the inference of second round control plus the presence of the trump ace [shown by a skip bid].

TODAY'S HAND.

	NORTH
	♠ A Q J 6 4 ♥ 8 6 4 3 2 ♦ 9 7 ♣ 3
WEST		EAST
♠ K 10 8 ♥ A J ♦ K Q J 10 8 5 ♣ 10 9		♠ 9 5 ♥ K Q 10 9 7 5 ♦ 6 2 ♣ A 7 5
	SOUTH ♠ 7 3 2 ♥ None ♦ A 4 3 ♣ K Q J 8 6 4 2

The bidding [neither side vulnerable]:

West	North	East	South
1 diamond	1 spade	2 hearts	3 clubs
3 diamonds	Pass	4 hearts	5 clubs
Double	Pass	Pass	Pass

The diamond king was opened and South, apparently without thought, pounced on it with his ace. A high club lead was taken by East, who returned his remaining diamond. Since East had "high-lowed" on the diamond plays, West had no difficulty in reading him for a doubleton and thus placing South with the remaining diamond. Therefore, instead of trying to cash the ace of hearts, West made the much safer play of cashing a diamond trick, then laid down the heart ace. Declarer ruffed, drew the outstanding trumps, and finessed spades successfully, returning to his hand by ruffing the second heart to repeat the spade finesse.

The defenders were quite content with the three tricks they had taken for the contract's defeat and, indeed, they should have been highly gratified. Declarer had tossed a beautiful opportunity out of the window by his failure to apply a simple safety measure. West's repeated diamond bid made it likely that he held six diamonds, in which case East would have only two. There was a distinct chance that the club ace was held not by the doubler but by East. If that were so, it was vital to leave East with no diamond communication card to the West hand. The hold-up of the diamond ace for one round would have done the trick.

TODAY'S QUESTION.

Question: Both sides vulnerable, South dealt. Opponents made no bids. How should the following North-South hands be bid:

SOUTH	NORTH
♠ A J 7	♠ 8 4 3
♥ A K	♥ Q J 10 7
♦ A Q 10 6 5	♦ K J 8 4
♣ 8 6 4	♣ K 3

Answer: The bidding should be:

South	North
1 diamond	1 heart
3 diamonds	4 diamonds
4 no trump	5 diamonds
Pass

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

It's Unwise to Object if That Young Man Courts Another Girl

BY DORIS BLAKE.

We have a lot of patience with feminine whims, but if there is one woman who ought to have her head examined it's the lady who has a "small foot" complex to the extent of wearing too small shoes.

The cumulative effect, over a period of years, of pouring the feet into tight, short shoes is so harmful, both from the looks and the foot health point of view, that we marvel at any woman's starting the habit. The agony they endure, too, is quite beyond our understanding.

The habit isn's so widespread as it was a decade or so ago. Children are wearing better shoes than they used to and they became so used to foot comfort from sensible shoes they are not likely to go haywire when they reach the age of wanting to look beautiful.

A lot of the nonsense about a pretty foot has been exploded, too. But there are some silly women who will always wear shoes too short—and they're the ones who're going to pay dearly for their folly.

Bunions aren't a minor foot ailment if they're neglected, and bunions are the result of shoes that squeeze the foot out of its natural straight line. Posture is affected by ill fitting shoes; so is the disposition—and so is the face.

The frowns and the tense mouth lines aching feet etch in a woman's face aren't fleeting marks. They'll be wrinkles, sure as shooting.

ELEANOR NANGLE.

R. M. G. writes that she is just about distracted because the young man with whom she has been going out for several years, and whom she expected she would some day marry, although there existed no formal engagement, has lately become negligent in his attentions and devotes much of his time to another.

She feels it would be unwise to bawl him out for his lack of consideration for her, yet she doesn't want him to think he can treat her so indifferently and get away with it. The other girl accepts his attentions and at times lends him plenty of encouragement, then for a time she will be indifferent to him, yet when she wants him he is at her beck and call.

Were you to offer criticisms, or suggest she is only using him when she needs him and really doesn't care for him, he would be inclined to attribute your criticisms to jealousy and that would make him all the more anxious to do everything possible to please her. He'd want to show you how mistaken you were.

Eventually he will see through her and her motives.

And while you're waiting for his awakening it might be well to find others with whom to spend those evenings you have heretofore held open for him. Let him see that you, too, hold some attraction for others. Put him in the position where he will come and ask to be taken back on the old terms.

Color and crispness are the two qualities which recommend carrots to salad making. Carrots for salads should be so crisp that they may be snapped in two in the hands. Strips or slices of carrot may be crisped by soaking them in ice water for an hour or two before the salad is made. If the strips are slivers and the slices are shavings, results are best of all.

HEALTH SALAD: Combine equal proportions of grated raw carrot, shredded lettuce and chopped celery with French dressing or mayonnaise. One cup of each vegetable is sufficient for six servings. Chopped green pepper may be added.

LETTUCE AND HERRING SALAD: Chop a head of lettuce coarsely and combine with ½ cup carrots, sliced thinly and crisped in cold water, 1 stalk celery chopped, 2 sliced hard cooked eggs, and 1 pickled herring, chopped. Toss lightly with French dressing to which several tablespoons of chili sauce or catsup have been added.

MOLDED CARROT AND PINEAPPLE SALAD: Combine two parts shredded carrot to 1 part drained crushed pineapple and mix with mayonnaise and a little chopped parsley for color contrast. Shape with ice cream scoop or small measuring cup, and turn out on salad green. Garnish each salad with a sprig of parsley. Chopped watercress may be substituted for the parsley and the salad green may be watercress.

CABBAGE, CARROT AND APPLE SALAD: For six servings, shred enough cabbage to make 2 cups, combine with 1 cup grated carrots, 1 cup chopped apple, ½ cup chopped green pepper and 1 small onion, grated. Sprinkle lightly with salt, combine with any preferred dressing, and serve on crisp cabbage leaves.

CHEESE CARROTS: Add a little onion juice and cream to cream cheese and shape it into carrot forms by rolling it with the hands. Roll each cheese carrot in grated raw carrot and insert a sprig of carrot top in the large end of each. Serve three cheese carrots on lettuce for each salad. French dressing or mayonnaise may be served separately.

CARROT AND RIPE OLIVE SALAD: For six servings toss together in a bowl ½ cup thinly sliced raw carrots, 1 cup cooked or canned peas, ½ cup chopped celery, ½ cup chopped ripe olives and 1 minced green onion. Moisten with French dressing and let stand for an hour in the refrigerator. Drain off superfluous dressing and serve on watercress.

CARROT AND RADISH SALAD: Combine equal parts of thinly sliced crisp carrots and radishes. Add French dressing seasoned with several drops of onion juice. Serve on chicory.

PICNIC SALAD: Combine in salad bowl, which has been lightly rubbed with garlic, finely shredded cabbage, pieces of watercress, thinly sliced raw carrot, chopped celery, diced tomatoes, sliced sweet pickles and cooked dressing. Use any proportions desirable.

300 Tenement Children Learn About Circuses

Three hundred tenement children, most of whom had never seen a circus, saw one yesterday at Camp Algonquin. It was their own. And even though it was encased in a four-foot ring of brown paper, and there was no mystery to the elephants, the ostriches and the dragons, they were no less thrilled than their fortunate friends who annually witness their circuses under a big top.

It was a great show. There were the jaunty ribbon band, the monkeys, the bears and the giraffes. There were the glamorous butterfly dancers, flirting rainbow wings of home-dyed muslin. There were cowgirls and cowboys, riding brooms, and a clan of gypsies, who, shorn of their turbans and bright aprons, were the camp's 40 colored mothers and their children. The rope-spinners, clowns, tumblers and freaks were there, and among them lurking a crew of dangerous threatening pirates.

And refreshments? Why, of course! Ice cream, lemonade and cookies—all they could eat.

"They've been excited for ten days, these boys and girls—and their mothers, too," laughed Mrs. Astrid Save, camp superintendent. "And last night they didn't sleep more than four hours, I know."

But yesterday's excitement only added savor to the usual restful routine at Camp Algonquin. More than 1,200 underprivileged children and several hundred tired mothers have gone there this summer to absorb the sun and air, and have returned happier, stronger, and better fitted to face winter in their crowded quarters. Another group of 240, the last vacationers of the summer will be admitted to the camp this week.

GODDARD TO HAINES PASSES SCORE FOR ALL-STARS

COMPLETE TWO TOSSES IN ROW FOR TOUCHDOWN

Squad Plays 2 Full Games.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Washington and Washington State, Huskies and Cougars, generally regard one another with the same distrustful admiration that David had for Goliath.

But yesterday at Dyche stadium, where the All-Star football men scrimmaged in preparation for their game with the Green Bay Packers on Sept. 1, Ed Goddard of Washington State and Byron Haines of the University of Washington paired as half backs to form one of the most efficient combinations the college coaches have discovered.

Perhaps, Goddard and Haines more easily forgot three years of football rivalry between Pullman and Seattle because both live in California. No matter the reason, this pair of athletes, Goddard, the passer, and Haines, the receiver, completed two successive passes and scored a touchdown in the second of the double-header games at Dyche stadium. And Haines, by his speed, excellent judgment of pace, and broken field running, proved that he must be considered for the right half back job when the All-Stars meet the professional champions.

Drake Is Choice to Start.

John Drake, Purdue's brilliant right half back, continues to be the coaches' choice for the starting assignment, which selection coincides with the result of the poll of 5,000,000 football fans, and Lloyd Cardwell, Nebraska's sprinting half back, tall and rangy, cannot be overlooked as his relief. But some time during the battle with the Packers watch for Haines. This member of the championship eleven of the Pacific coast conference may be the gentleman to break up the game. Moreover, Haines can handle those line drive passes of Sammy Baugh. There is no better receiver on the All-Star squad.

Which returns us to the start of yesterday's two hour scrimmage and the amazing passing of Slingin' Sammy Baugh.

Herber May Get a Lesson.

If Baugh doesn't give Arnie Herber of the Packers lessons in forward passing on the night of Sept. 1 it will be because some one forgot the football. Every word of praise given this happy, carefree southerner from Texas Christian is an understatement of his ability.

Baugh's pitching, and the crashing line thrusts of Ed Jankowski, were the news of the first of yesterday's scrimmage games. Here are the lineups for that scrap which Baugh's team won, 6 to 0:

Widseth [Minn.]	L. T. Steinkemper [N. D.]
Starcevich [Wash.]	L. G. Glassford [Pitt.]
Svendsen [Minn.]	C. Conlee [St. Mary's]
Reid [N. D.]	R. G. Smith [Ohio State]
Daniell [Pitt.]	R. T. Henrion [Carnegie]
Wendt [Ohio State]	R. E. Deutsch [St. Ben't's]
Wilkinson [Minn.]	Q. B. Cain [Wash.]
Baugh [T. C. U.]	L. H. Wilke [N. D.]
Drake [Purdue]	R. H. Guepe [Marquette]
Jankowski [Wis.]	F. B. Danbom [N. D.]

Make Four Straight First Downs.

After the first team lost the ball by pass interception at the start of the game this eleven directed by Bud Wilkinson ran up four consecutive first downs and hammered to within 10 yards of the goal on its second march. In this drive Baugh tossed three consecutive successful passes to Tinsley and Wilkinson. Jankowski cracked the line for 5 yards, and after two pass failures Baugh ran off tackle for 10 yards. The drive was checked when a third down pass fell incomplete over the goal line.

But when the first team regained possession after O'Neill's punt, it scored with ridiculous ease. Drake plowed off right tackle for 5 yards. Then Baugh, running across the field, reversing when cornered, threw to Jankowski for a 30 yard gain and possession of the ball on the opponents' 40 yard line. On the next play Baugh spotted Drake running into the end zone and his pass accurately cleared the outstretched hands of two defending backs and Drake scored. Bud Wilkinson's attempt for the point was wide, due undoubtedly to the handi-

LOUIS PUTS ON A SHOW FOR ONE MAX SCHMELING

Farr Has a Visitor, Too; He's a Mr. Max Baer.

BY FRENCH LANE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 22.—Two things had to be done today along the world's heavyweight championship battle front—bolster up Tommy Farr, the challenger from the British empire, and take just a little wind out of the sails of Mr. Joe Louis, champion of the world.

This delicate assignment was given to two guys by the name of Max.

Max Schmeling from Germany, the one fellow who has been able to make champion Joe shake and shiver, dropped in a trifle swaggeringly at Louis' Pompton Lakes training camp.

There, in a cool, critical manner as the guest of Promoter Mike Jacobs, he watched Champion Joe go through his final hard boxing drill for the first defense of his title at Yankee stadium next Thursday night.

Joe Stands His Ground.

A drizzle was falling when Schmeling approached the open air ring from which Louis had just been introduced. Joe did not turn and run off into the Jersey hills and hide. He scarcely flicked an eyelid when he greeted Max with a "Howdy, Mistah Schmeling."

Immediately, however, he put on the most vicious of all his boxing rehersals and whaled the tar out of his three sparring partners.

Schmeling thought Louis was in splendid shape physically. "But he can't fight any better than he could on the night I whipped him," Herr Max said with his German accent.

At about the same hour, Max Baer, cast in the rôle he likes to play best—that of a comedian—arrived at Long Branch, N. J., and right away the Tommy Farr camp became a "daffydill" training quarters.

Ah! A Guy He Can Beat.

At sight of Maxie, Tommy's spirits soared. Here was the sort of an opponent a fellow liked to remember.

Tommy's chest bulged. New courage spread over his face. He, too, in his choppy, unorthodox fashion, hammered away at his spar mates unmercifully. None was killed or seriously maimed, however. Tommy explained this by saying he "had to go a little easy because of that cut under my eye."

"Big Boy, you're marvelous," said Baer to Farr as Max climbed into the ring, after the workouts. "You'll chase that Louis guy right into the Hudson." All the time, however, Maxie was winking at his conditioner, Isadore Kline, and to those in the front row of the press seats.

Tommy wouldn't enter into any conversation with Max—fact is he's a little mad at him for circulating rumors that Tommy uses billy goat tactics when he fights.

Anybody Like Farr?

Both camps were packed for these last smashing boxing rehersals. Still the situation as far as New Yorkers are concerned, remains the same. The Lloyd Cardwell, Nebraska half back, cuts through his left tackle for a long gain as the All-Americans, who battle the Green Bay Packers, National Professional league champions, the night of Sept. 1, go through a double-header scrimmage at Dyche stadium yesterday. What Price Fame?

Hometown produced a child prodigy in freehand sketch work who attained national recognition as a cartoonist after moving to Metropolis, ninety miles away. From time to time he promised himself and the natives a thrill by returning to Hometown while his star was in the ascendancy. His ambition wasn't realized for twenty years. Suddenly deciding to take the town by storm he stole into Hometown under cover of darkness, unannounced. Early next morning he emerged from the Grand hotel joyously anticipating the rousing welcome he knew would be tendered him. His first contact, what a streak of luck, was the railroad passenger agent, official dispenser of news and gossip. Here was the native who probably would spread the glad tidings.

Grasping the hand of the station agent, he fairly shouted: "Well, well, well. The first friend I meet in Hometown. You, my old, old pal. Tell me, many changes in the old town?"

The agent continued to allow his hand to be shaken and acknowledged the effusive greeting rather perfunctorily with, "Why, hello, Don. You been away?"

U. S. Amateur Golf Tourney Starts Today

Portland, Ore., Aug. 22.—(AP)—America's finest amateur golfers go into action here tomorrow at the Alderwood Country club in the opening round of the 36 hole qualifying trials for the national championship. The field for the 41st annual tournament, in the opinion of John G. Jackson, U. S. G. A. president, is the best since its inception in 1895.

It includes four former title holders in addition to the defending champion, Johnny Fischer of Cincinnati, O. Six of last year's eight quarter-finalists will be present, along with Walker cup stars of others years and prospective and potential members of the future international teams.

Rounding out the list of 181 entrants—there may be ten or so last minute withdrawals—is an imposing group of sectional and state title holders and other low handicap stars representing practically every golfing area in the country.

Among the notables who will troop over Alderwood's 6,601 yards of fairways and greens in attempts to conquer its par 37-35 will be Francis Ouimet, the Boton "boy wonder" of an earlier golfing era. His stunning victory over the famed British pair, Ted Ray and Harry Vardon, had much to do with the rank and file of this country becoming golf-conscious.

Chick Evans, Chicago's veteran stylist, who won in 1916 and 1920; Jess Guilford, winner in 1921, and Ross Sommerville of Canada, 1932 champion, round out the list of former title holders. Sommerville and Ken Black of Vancouver are the only foreign entrants.

ROOT, CARLETON STOP REDS; CUBS INCREASE LEAD

Charley Yields Only Six Hits in First Game.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cincinnati, O., Aug. 22.—The Cubs, whose pennant campaign has encountered a series of reverses for the last couple of weeks, leaped back into action with both feet today to waylay the Reds in a double-header. The first argument was concluded without complications, 4 to 1, because of the services of the 38 year old Charles Root. The second game was a bit stormy, the Chicagoans having to score four runs in the ninth to win, 5 to 2, for Tex Carleton, and increase their lead to four games.

Root's portion of the day's entertainment was so dazzling that only six hits delayed progress toward his twelfth victory of the season. For five innings the old timer held his own in a duel with Lee [Lefty] Grissom, yielding only one hit. His pals then swarmed on the erratic Grissom for three runs in the sixth and thereafter Root could afford to take it easy. Altogether only two Reds passed second base.

Infielders Help Carleton.

Carleton's bid for his eleventh victory was a 1 to 0 fight for seven innings, during which he was aided materially by the brilliance of the infielders immediately behind him. The run was picked up in the fourth by Frank Demaree and Bill Jurges on hits off Gene Schott who otherwise was an accomplished workman who refused to give ground even in the face of the Reds' determination not to step off a dime in their fielding efforts. But Schott had to be removed for a pinch hitter while the Reds were getting their tying run in the eighth.

With Schott, who owns only one victory for the season, gone away, Al [Lefty] Hollingsworth was put to work and the Cubs made merry. Jurges led off in the decisive ninth with a single to right and Cavarretta sacrificed. Hollingsworth was nice enough to load the bases by walking Stainback and Carleton. He continued his generous tactics by passing Hack, forcing Jurges to score. Ray Davis supplanted Hollingsworth and Galan clinched everything with a triple to right, the three gentlemen on the bases scoring. This abundance of runs proved invaluable to Carleton a moment later.

FIRST GAME

Root had one of his rare streaks of wildness in the opening inning of the first game and the Reds linked a hit with this feature to score a run. After Walker, the leadoff man, had been thrown out, Goodman and Hafey drew passes. Scarsella looked at a third strike, but Campbell, the one time Cub, singled to center to send Goodman home.

During the first four innings Grissom was strong enough to hold the Cubs to two hits, one a single by Demaree to start the second and the other a single by Stainback to open the third. Then the league leaders finally put over the tying run on a fluke happening in the fifth. With one out Cavarretta flied to left and Hafey chased the ball almost to the foul line where it rolled off his glove and dropped on fair territory. Unable to halt his dash, Hafey dived over the low pavilion fence and before he could extricate himself from the seats, Cavarretta had gone around the bases for a homer.

The three run action in the Cub sixth began with a single by Herman, who promptly stole second. Demaree grounded to Scarsella but Grissom forgot to cover the bag so it went for a hit. Hartnett, who has been slightly shy about hitting during the last week, then doubled off the left field fence, Herman and Demaree scoring. Jurges sacrificed, Cavarretta was thrown out and Stainback hit a high fly to left. Hafey obliged by let-

LYONS ALLOWS ONLY 5 HITS IN 5 TO 2 TRIUMPH

Averill's Home Run Decides 2d, 3 to 2.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The White Sox made four hits in the first game of yesterday's doubleheader with the Cleveland Indians and five in the second game. They won the first encounter, 5 to 2, thanks to the wildness of Bob Feller, boy wonder, but lost the second, 3 to 2, on Earl Averill's second victorious eighth inning homer of the series. A crowd of 32,000 saw the boys split honors.

Ted Lyons deserved to win the first game, for he allowed only five hits, four of which came after two were out, including one in the ninth. It wasn't his fault that the Sox made only one productive hit, a triple by Dixie Walker, which developed into the Sox's fifth and highly superfluous run. The Sox made four of their runs before they made their first hit, one after two walks in the first inning and three in the second on five straight walks and a fly ball.

Harder's Just Too Good.

Kennedy pitched well in the second game, but found Mel Harder no such a wild man as Feller. A genuine triple by Bruce Campbell in the second was responsible for a 1 to 0 lead, which the Sox wiped out with two runs in the fourth that accrued from a walk to Walker, Harder's only pass, Radcliff's single, an error by Averill, a wild pitch, and a fly ball.

The Indians tied up the game after two were out in the sixth on a single by Julius Solters and Campbell's second triple, a blooper back of first which many of the spectators and all the Sox thought was a foul. Then that homer of Averill's, who on other occasions failed to get the ball out of the infield, decided the issue.

FIRST GAME

The first scoring in the first game was due to Feller's wildness. The youth walked Hayes and Kreevich in the first inning and the pair advanced on Walker's sacrifice. Hayes scored on Radcliff's fly to Solters and the inning ended with Appling's pop to Lary. The Indians tied the count in the second inning with an unearned run. Haas gave Solters' grounder that old salute, Julius reaching second on the error. He went to third on Campbell's grounder to Appling and scored on Hale's fly to Walker. Pytlak singled, but Appling threw out Feller.

Three more runs were added in the second without the Sox's first hit. With one down, Piet walked, stole second, and went to third when Pytlak threw into center field. Rensa walked, stole second and in the process Piet was trapped off third, but got back when Hale dropped a throw from Kroner. Lyons then walked, filling the bases, after which Hayes drew his second pass, forcing Piet across the plate. Kreevich also got his second pass, forcing Rensa home. Walker flied to Solters, Lyons scoring.

A Hit, but No Runs.

The Sox made their first hit in the third, but couldn't score. Appling opened with a single to right, advanced on Haas' sacrifice and stole third. Luke sought to score on Piet's foul to Hale and was tossed out.

After Kreevich had poppeu to Lary in the home fifth, Walker tripled to right center, the Sox's second hit, and scored on Radcliff's long fly to Solters. Appling popped to Lary.

The Indians got their second run and third hit off Lyons in the sixth. Ted walked three during the course of the inning, but braced to make Pytlak pop to Hayes and Pinch Batter Billy Sullivan foul to Rensa.

SECOND GAME

Bruce Campbell's triple with one out in the second inning bloomed into the first run of the second game. Bruce got home while Hayes was throwing out Hale.

The Sox grabbed the lead in the fourth. Walker walked and took third on Radcliff's single to center and, when Averill threw the ball past third Radcliff took second. Walker scored the tying run and Radcliff took third on a wild pitch. Radcliff scored on Appling's fly. Haas bounced to Monaco after which Piet, for the second time during the afternoon, stole second and reached third on a throw to center field. Sewell ended the inning with a tap to Lary.

Campbell Gets Troublesome.

Campbell's second triple drove in the tying run with two out in the sixth. After Averill had fanned and Trosky had bounced to Haas, Solters singled to right and scored when Campbell dropped a high fly on the foul line back of first which went for a triple.

Averill, who won Friday's game with a homer in the eighth knocked even a bigger homer with one out in the eighth of this game. Trosky followed with a foul to Haas and Solters flied to Radcliff.

With two out in the ninth Sullivan singled to right and stopped at third on a double which Harder banged against the left field wall. Lary was

C. Y. O. BOXERS PICKED TO FIGHT SOUTH AMERICA

Officials Meet Today to Pair Opponents.

The personnel of the Catholic Youth organization team which will meet sixteen of the best boxers in South America at Soldiers' field Wednesday was announced yesterday.

Six members of the group are current open division champions and one is a novice title holder, aside from the fact that several former C. Y. O. and Golden Gloves monarchs are on the squad, too.

O'Connell Fights as Featherweight.

Eddie O'Connell won the novice bantamweight crown last year, but he will compete as a featherweight on Wednesday.

Chester Rutecki is a former C. Y. O. and Golden Gloves welterweight title holder, while Tom Kenneally, heavyweight, and Hiner Thomas, middleweight, are erstwhile C. Y. O. kings.

The pairings of the two groups will be announced after a meeting late this afternoon between Señor Alberto Festal, head of the South American team; Capt. Roy E. Davis, chairman of the Central A. A. U. boxing committee, and Thomas O'Connell, boxing director of the C. Y. O.

Scoring System Will Be Discussed.

At the meeting rules governing the contests will be agreed upon. One of the most important of the codes to be discussed will concern the international scoring system.

O'Connell will insist that the American method of using and collecting votes from two judges and a referee be used. The international rule involves a referee and three judges, but only the judges are allowed to vote.

The international system was used in the recent Pan-American games tournament at Dallas, Tex., when the South Americans won five of eight championships.

International System Likely.

Capt. Davis explained the international rules will govern Wednesday's contests unless it is mutually agreed to abide by the American code.

The C. Y. O. team was picked from a group of seventy-three of the best boxers in the organization after two weeks' training at their base at the Lewis Holy Name School of Aeronautics near Lockport. The selections, made by Head Coach Paddy Kane and Director O'Connell, follow:

112 POUNDS—Johnny Noto and Walter Cavaleri.
118 POUNDS—Frankie Kainrath and Al Scarlata.
126 POUNDS—Joe Du Pont and Ed O'Connell.
135 POUNDS—William Goldsmith and Tony Motisi.
147 POUNDS—Chester Rutecki and Savior Canadeo.
160 POUNDS—Cornelius Young and Hiner Thomas.
175 POUNDS—John Hawthorne and Al Urlich.
HEAVYWEIGHTS—Tom Kenneally and Clarence Brown.

How the Conflict in Spain Affects U. S. Fishermen

BY BOB BECKER.

The Spanish war is a good many miles from fishermen in the United States. But there are indications that the war is going to catch up with many of us who like to fish. The way in which we are going to be affected is through the price of Spanish gut, an item that figures in many types of fishing outfits.

The best gut leaders that thousands of fishermen use [especially in trout fishing] are made with Spanish gut. Tackle manufacturers in America send to Spain for this material. The other day when we were buying a few trout leaders and grumbling about the price we were advised by the salesman that we would have plenty of cause for complaint next season when a shortage of Spanish gut is bound to raise the price of a tackle item utilizing that material.

Artificial gut has become quite popular with many fishermen. This material is being used to make short leaders for bass and pike fishermen when they fish with live bait.

But there is nothing we have discovered that can equal high grade Spanish gut for straight or tapered leaders in trout fishing. Such being the case, all of us who like to fish trout doubtless will have to budget more money for our leaders next spring.

Meantime we are finding that the "English made" complex that exists in some of the best tackle shops is making some of us pay too much for trout leaders today. On our shopping trips we find it none too easy to get American made trout leaders because certain tackle shops won't stock them. Both American and English tackle manufacturers send to Spain for gut supplies.

It's merely a question of whether an English girl can tie a better series of knots in the gut than an American girl. If the knots are tied in England, then we must pay duty on the leader. We have found American made leaders as good if not better than the English ones.

Metz-Nelson Duo's 74 Wins in Pro-Ladies

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Dick Metz of the Mill Road Farm course and Rena Nelson of Exmoor yesterday ran off with the pro-ladies golf tournament at the Big Oaks club.

They shot a 36—38—74 to take low gross honors for the day. The one stroke handicap held by Miss Nelson, former women's district champion, also would have enabled them to carry home the low net prize with a 73, but as only one prize was allowed, four other pairs each with 74 fought it out for the first low net award.

Miss Nelson topped off the day by planting an iron shot up to the 388 yard 18th flag, leaving Metz a four foot putt, which he dropped for a birdie.

The four pairs who tied for low net honors were Byron Harcke and Janet Smith of Rockford, 78—4—74; Mrs. W. E. Gage and Bill Gordon of Rockford, 79—5—74; Mrs. Marguerite Krick of Wilmette and Bill Schwartz of Touhy playfield, 81—7—74, and Mrs. Chick Olson and Charley Penna of Medinah, 82—8—74.

The thirty-third annual Chicago amateur tournament, grandpappy of all local golf competition, will open this morning at the Jackson park course. Another large field, which may exceed last year's record entry of 168 players, is expected by Jack F. Kelly, chairman of the tournament committee.

The Chicago amateur is one of the better known events in the country, and annually has supplied the town with several of its ablest swingers.

The tournament was the first established event in the country to abolish stymies, and will continue the practice this year. No club affiliations are required of any player, and, as was the case last year, members of private clubs are liable to be matched against golfers whose circumstances are such that they must play where and when they can. A number of the 1936 competitors came direct to the starting tee from jobs which kept them working all night.

The city amateur is run on the British system of all match play, originating from a seeded draw. The championship flight will be restricted to players with a handicap of 10 strokes or less. All others will be matched in a second flight.

The twenty-fourth annual caddy championship of the Chicago District Golf association will be held at the Beverly Hills Country club today. A field of 32 teams will compete. Play for the team championship will be at 18 holes, with the foursome bringing in the lowest gross being awarded the trophy. The seven or eight low individual scorers at the conclusion of the first 18 then will tee off on an extra nine hole round to determine the individual titleholder for next year.

Both the champion and runnerup in the 1936 team tournament face difficult tasks this year, for only one member of either of last year's teams is entered today. Beverly and Brookwood tied for last year's title with 329. Beverly eventually winning the playoff, but only Walter Mauter of Brookwood is returning. Arthur Hoff of Butterfield, winner of the 1936 individual championship, also will be absent, but Louis Esposito of Twin Orchards, runnerup, will be back for another shot at the title.

Chess Stars Open National Title Tournament Today

More than 60 of the country's top flight chess players will begin matches for the national championship in the 13 day 38th annual tournament of the American Chess federation, which opens today at the Congress hotel.

cap of the long grass on the gridiron.

Starting lineups for the game between the Blues [second team] and the Greens [fourth team] follow:

BLUES.		GREENS.
Antil [Minn.]	L. E.	Galatka [Miss. Sta.]
Dennerlein [St. M.]	L. T.	Carlson [De Paul]
Lauter [N. D.]	L. G.	C. Kuhn [Illinois]
Basrak [Duquesne]	C.	Wistrak [Wash.]
Bassi [Santa Clara]	R. G.	Dahlgren [Mich. St.]
Bjork [Oregon]	R. T.	Dykstra [Illinois]
Stromberg [Army]	R. E.	Patanelli [Mich.]
Huffman [Indiana]	Q. B.	Geyer [Northw'n]
Buivid [Marqu'te]	L. H.	Agett [Mich. State]
Cardwell [Neb.]	R. H.	La Rue [Pitt.]
Francis [Neb.]	F. B.	Toth [Northw'n]

Numerous substitutions were made, among them Joe Riley for Al Agett. It was Riley's running and passing which not only held the second eleven for fifteen minutes but linked together a drive of three first downs. The Blues, with the half back combination of Goddard and Haines, scored when Haines got away from the secondary defense to grab Goddard's passes.

Alfonse Intercepts Two Passes.

Julius Alfonse, substituted at right half on the Greens, intercepted two passes, and might have scored on one of these runs except that Will Phillips of De Paul brought him down from behind. Phillips had replaced Haines after the Washington star had been severely jolted.

The score, however, was tied in the last minute when Tippy Dye, elusive Ohio State passer, shot the ball to Chuck Galatka, Mississippi State end, in the end zone for a touchdown.

Ken Relyea, Colgate tackle, may not be able to play in the game with the Packers. Recurrence of an injury to the nerves in his left shoulder has made it necessary to place his arm in a cast.

The only practice today will be held this afternoon. The next scrimmage, and possibly the last, is scheduled for Wednesday. This will be played under game conditions and probably will determine the final alignment of the teams.

Christy, Angott to Fight Tonight in Marigold Ring

Sammy Angott of Louisville, Ky., and Jimmy Christy, Chicago, will attempt to settle their differences in a return bout at ten rounds tonight at Marigold Gardens.

In their first meeting July 12 Angott won the decision in a close battle.

George Blake, here to referee in the international matches between boxers from South America and the Catholic Youth organization, will second Christy. Supporting contests:

Carl Vinciquerra vs. Jack Farzo [5], heavyweights.
Andy Scirvani vs. Frankie Agnes [4], 135.
Alex Kettles vs. Freddy Berg [4], heavyweights.
Pat Schoenberger vs. Don White [4], 148.

Bobby Bruns, north side heavyweight, and Fred Grubmier of Iowa will top the wrestling show tonight at White City, 63d street and South Park avenue. Pat Kelly, an old favorite, will reappear in the semi-final against Jack Conley. Jack Claybourn and Mike Kilonis are paired, as are Angelo Martini and Frank Welger, and Bill Brooks and Young Szabo. . . . Tony and Mike Sopko, fighting brothers from Elmwood Park, will appear in two featured contests on the amateur card tonight at Northwest stadium, 4848 Irving Park boulevard, the former against Lupe Munos and Mike against Eddie Lander.

Packers Come Back to Win League Title

[This is the sixth and last installment of a brief history of the Green Bay Packers, world professional football champions, who will meet the College All-Americans at Soldiers' field in THE TRIBUNE'S fourth annual charity game the night of Sept. 1.]

BY RED GRANGE.

After the collapse of his champions during the closing games of the 1932 season Coach Curly Lambeau set about to weld another winning Packer team together.

Before the opening of the 1936 season he believed that he had a championship aggregation. He had everything, it seemed, plus the priceless combination of Arnold Herber throwing passes to Don Hutson, Alabama's Rose Bowl hero. But Curly got a shock in the first contest. The Packers were crucified that afternoon, 30 to 3, by the red hot Chicago Bears.

It is a matter of record that Curly gave Green Bay another championship last season after that disheartening defeat. The Packers beat the Bears in their second meeting, defeated the champion Detroit Lions twice, and won handily from Boston in the Cardinals Advance to Third Place.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Aug. 22.—(AP)—Bob Weiland and Dizzy Dean pitched and batted the St. Louis Cardinals back into third place in the National league today with a pair of victories over the Pittsburgh Pirates, 12 to 0 and 9 to 7.

Weiland halted the onrushing Pirates with three hits in the first game and started the Cardinal fireworks with a three run home run in the second inning.

Dean scored his first victory since early in July and his 13th of the season in the second game. He was touched for 11 hits, but drove out a home run and two singles to score three times himself and knock in as many others.

Louis Shows Schmeling He's a Changed Boy

There's no gold from the Bank of England nor even a shilling from an ex-miner from Wales offered on Tommy's chances of carrying away the world crown. Schmeling, who has been around for nearly a week now, telling everybody that he's the real champion and that he soon will fight Louis for not less than 30 per cent of the gate, traveled to Pompton Lakes in a luxurious limousine. Accompanying him were Promoter Mike Jacobs and Joe Jacobs, Schmeling's American representative.

This, of course, gave rise to whispered rumors that a Schmeling-Louis fight is on. Why they should be merely whispered is a mystery. Everybody is aware that a Schmeling-Louis fight will be held, and that more than likely it will be staged this fall in New York a night or two before the Yankees start playing here for the world's baseball championship.

It might, of course, go to Chicago or Philadelphia, but Promoter Jacobs makes no bones about the fact that he is expecting a million and a half dollar gate for that presentation and he wonders if he can get it anywhere except in New York.

He knows his way around in New York. Somebody has to show him around in Chicago and Philadelphia. So draw your own conclusions.

GHEZZI'S 277 WINS LAKE PLACID GOLF BY FOUR STROKES

Lake Placid, N. Y., Aug. 22.—[Special.]—Vic Ghezzi of Deal, N. J., won the Lake Placid open golf tournament today with a 72 hole score of 277.

Ghezzi finished four strokes ahead of Gene Sarazen, his chief challenger. Then came Ben Hogan, Fort Worth professional, who posted a 283. Al Brosch, Farmingdale, L. I., was next with 285. Jimmy Hines had two subpar rounds today with 70 and 69 to finish fifth with 286.

Athletics Fall Before Gomez and DiMaggio

New York, Aug. 22.—(AP)—Lefty Gomez's pitching and Joe Di Maggio's hitting were all the Yankees needed today to defeat the Philadelphia Athletics, 4 to 1, before rain drowned out their game with one out in the sixth inning. The second game of what was to have been a double-header was rained out.

Gomez, making his first start since his performance last Tuesday when he learned of his mother's death and then went out to pitch a three-hit victory, duplicated that performance today.

Biggest help to Gomez was Di Maggio, who clinched the game with his 36th homer in the third inning with a mate on base.

given an intentional pass, filling the bases. Pytlak batted for Monaco and grounded out to Hayes.

John Whitehead will pitch for the White Sox against the New York Yankees when the Chicagoans resume work at Comiskey park tomorrow. Thornton Lee, who had a record of five victories and no defeats against the New Yorkers before the Yanks bowled him over in the tournament of morning glories early this month, will pitch the second and final Yank game Wednesday.

The two Yankee games Tuesday and Wednesday will be the last of the season at Comiskey park for the New Yorkers. And, goody, goody, the Sox have to play only two more in New York.

Walter Johnson, who furnished the standard of most comparisons, when all the gurgling was going on about Feller, got his first look at Young Bob yesterday. Feller did little in yesterday's encounter to make the fans think of Johnson.

ting the ball fall for a triple, Hartnett scoring. Grissom started to walk Root, but was suddenly removed and Derringer turned the budding pass into a strikeout.

SECOND GAME

Prior to breaking out with a run in the fourth inning of the second game the Cubs possessed only one hit off Schott. Then with one out in the fourth Demaree lined low to right for what should have been a single. Goodman foolishly attempted a shoestring catch and the ball bounced past him for a double. O'Dea fouled to Scarsella and Demaree, who would have been on first if Goodman hadn't endeavored some unnecessary heroics, scored on Jurges' single to left.

The Reds nicked Carleton for a pass and single in the first inning, but there was a double play between these events. In the second inning that annoying Mr. Lombardi opened with a double to right, but was still on second when the inning ended. Another double play ended a threat created by Scarsella's single with one out in the fourth. A third double play nullified a single with which Riggs led off in the fifth.

Fine Fielding Helps Tex.

Excellent fielding kept Carleton's 1 to 0 lead from being assaulted in the seventh. The inning opened with a pass to Hafey. Scarsella bunted and Cavarretta whipped the ball to second, Jurges getting it for a putout, although he had to stretch himself for the throw. That Lombardi fellow came into the picture again, this time on a single to left. Riggs then cracked a mean grounder to Herman, who scooped it up on the run and shot it to Jurges to start a double play.

The tying run in the eighth started with Kampouris' drive which slipped off Hack's glove for a single. Cuyler batted for Miller and singled over short, Kampouris taking third. He scored on a fly dispatched to Demaree by Jorden who batted for Schott. Cuyler died stealing before Walker drew a pass, Stainbach took Goodman's fly for the third out.

After getting his handsome lead Carleton had a little trouble in the home ninth but it never was serious.

IDLE BROKERS WATCH TICKER TRAVEL LOWER

Market Is Gloomy as Trade Lags.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 22.—[Special]—Little cheer was radiated in Wall street last week as dealers in issues on the New York Stock exchange watched the ticker tape record lower prices on five successive days. In the two hours of trading on Saturday the list staged a modest rally which, however, was insufficient to restore the losses sustained in the preceding sessions.

Transfers of ownership taxed the facilities of the exchange at no time during the week and brokers' employes and traders—that is, those who remained in the city—had plenty of time to sit around and discuss the mugginess of the weather. Total volume for the six days amounted to 3,821,000 shares and on not one day did trading total 800,000 shares. The closest it came to that figure was on Friday, when selling was general, 799,170 shares changing hands.

Reason for Gain.

Saturday's recovery in stocks, which ranged from fractions in the general list to as much as 2 points, was ascribed in most quarters to covering operations by professional operators who are now said to be dominating the market. The action of the federal reserve banks in Chicago and Atlanta in lowering the rediscount rates and the imminent adjournment of congress were singled out as other favorable factors.

As regards the ending of the congressional session market circles do not expect it to help the market in positive fashion so long as there remains the possibility that a special session may be called for the fall. Most circles, however, welcome the breathing spell.

During the week it was demonstrated again that the "public" definitely is not in the market. With due allowance being made for the vacation season, which is now at its height, brokerage circles are dispirited over the lack of commissions. With the trading mechanism geared to handle several million shares daily a single session in which a million shares change ownership is cause for comment.

Market Is Thin.

Thin markets are prevalent in most stock as is evidenced by the fact that little buying or selling can easily produce wide swings in prices. Some quarters dispute the argument that the difficulty in selling or buying stocks at current quotations lies in the regulations now in effect by the securities and exchange commission and the high margin requirements imposed by the federal reserve. It is argued that though those regulations hamper professional market operators and small traders both classes of dealings grow plentiful enough when the profit incentive is strong.

Drop in Wheat Due to Small Export Sales

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

American wheat is not moving into the export market in the volume that was anticipated a month ago. The lack of aggressive buying by European countries has contributed to the rather severe deflation in market values that occurred last week. Wheat for delivery in September sold at a new low for the season in the Chicago market of $1.04⅛ a bushel, compared with the top price of $1.29¾ reached last month.

Explanation of the hesitancy of European buyers to step into the market is not hard to find. During July prices were carried up swiftly on a wave of speculative buying that was based partly on the belief that black rust would ruin this country's chances of producing an exportable surplus of wheat.

Damage Fear Exaggerated.

The worst fears inspired by the black rust plague were not realized, although the subsequent deterioration of the Canadian crop has been a decidedly bullish influence on prices.

As usually happens when a speculative movement occurs, the upturn in prices early in the summer exaggerated the significance of the crop damage reports. Since then there has been a natural reaction in prices which has been intensified by the seasonal hedging pressure accompanying the movement of the crop into storage. Normally hedge sales made earlier are removed as the wheat is sold for export, but the delay in the export movement has not given the market the benefit of this buying support to date.

CHICAGO TRADE HAS CUSTOMARY SEASONAL DROP

Chicago business last week experienced its usual seasonal let-down, the Chicago Association of Commerce reported yesterday. Wholesale orders showed a marked drop from the activity of the preceding two weeks, but the slump was not so precipitate as a year ago.

Retail turnover held more closely to the levels of previous weeks, and a sharp upturn is expected this week and next as buying in preparation of reopening of schools develops.

HOG SLAUGHTER BY AAA PROVES COSTLY MISTAKE

Events of 4 Years Disprove Theory.

Today is the fourth anniversary of the pig slaughter by the Agriculture Adjustment administration. On Aug. 23, 1933, the first of the 6,188,717 small pigs, and the first of the 222,149 bred sows that were expected to raise the hog population by 1,000,000 new pigs, met their doom on the packers' killing floors. On Oct. 6, the same year, the last pig was "tanked" for grease and tankage.

That was the beginning of a series of programs to cut production of pork and raise prices. Although the two main objectives of the reduction program, a hog shortage and high pork prices, have been accomplished, this fourth anniversary is not the occasion for rejoicing among crop tinkers that they had hoped it might be.

Many Things Go Awry.

Many things have gone awry. The hog raisers, who planners had expected to help, have been hurt as a result of government meddling with production. An entirely unplanned phenominal recovery of private industry enabled consumers to buy more at a time when the American hog raiser had little to sell.

The planners did not foresee the worst drouth on record that went the AAA one better in cutting production just a few months after the last of the pigs and sows had been destroyed. They obviously had not looked for the pork boycott by the public when the processing tax was levied to help pay for the destruction of animals. They did not foresee the wrecking of the American pork trade in foreign countries or the record flood of product from abroad.

Planners' Theories Exploded.

A mass of data disproves the planners' theory that more abundant living is possible in their method of control. Cattle and sheep men, as well as foreign farmers, are getting more abundant returns because they refused to "coöperate" with the AAA.

When natural recovery from the depression increased the workers' pay envelopes prices went up and cattle and sheep men had something to sell. Their output also was cut by the drouth and also by the slaughtering of live stock under the "emergency live stock buying program," but not to the extent that hog production was reduced.

As a result cattle and sheep men are enjoying some of the highest gross payments for live stock in a great many years. Gross returns from hogs are among the smallest.

Hog Raisers are Victims.

In the latest government report on payments by packers under federal inspection for live stock, which is for June, the hog money was down to $55,000,000, or $9,000,000 less than in June, 1936, and $41,021,000 below the five year average, 1926-'30, just prior to the low time of the depression. The average for the five years, 1921-'25, was $80,600,000.

Cattle men were paid $62,000,000, an increase of $11,000,000 over June, 1936, returns and only $4,500,000 under the 1926-'30 average. The 1921-'25 cattle returns averaged only $50,399,000. In addition, cattle men were paid $8,000,000 for calves, an increase of $1,000,000 over 1936, a gain of $500,000 over the five year average for the first period and $2,700,000 more than the 1921-'25 average.

Lambs returned $11,000,000, a gain of $1,000,000 over June, 1936, and the same as the 1926-'30 average. The 1921-'25 average was $8,522,000.

The attached tabulation indicates what has occurred in the live stock and meat industry since the pig killing:

OIL FIRM TELLS PUBLIC REASONS FOR PRICE SHIFTS

New York, Aug. 22.—(AP)—The public, in the future, will be informed of the reasons behind any important adjustments in the prices of products by the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, W. S. Farish, president, announced today. He said this policy has been adopted on the grounds "people are interested in and have a right to know what makes the things they buy cost what they do."

In spite of increased labor costs, transportation expenses, materials, taxes, interest rates and other items, he asserted, the average price of gasoline had advanced only 11.8 per cent since the low point of the depression in June, 1932, while the price of all commodities, as calculated by the labor department's index, had risen 36.5 per cent.

Freeport Sulphur.

Investors' Guide: Please give me information on Freeport Texas stock. —L. P. F.

Answer: The Freeport Sulphur company, whose name was changed from Freeport Texas company late in 1936, is the second largest producer of sulphur in the United States. It supplies about one-third of this country's requirements, accounts for about one-half of its exports, and produces about one-fourth of world sulphur output.

Most of the sulphur produced is used for manufacture of sulphuric acid, which is used by nearly all leading industries, including oil refineries, chemical, rayon, steel and other metallurgical plants. Large amounts of sulphur in other forms are used in making paper, textiles and rubber goods.

Because of the wide use of sulphur in industry, earnings of this company reflect to a large degree the state of business activity from time to time. With the expansion of general industrial activity Freeport's business is the best in years. Net income for the first half of 1937 was $1,280,000 or $1.56 per common share, compared with $1,015,000 or $1.22 a share in the first half of 1936. The record of recent years follows:

	Sales	Net Income	Inc. per com.shr.
1936	$12,043,000	$2,010,000	$2.43
1935	9,787,000	1,492,000	1.78
1934	8,813,000	1,477,000	1.75
1933	9,546,000	2,479,000	3.01
1932	8,437,000	2,005,000	2.75

Current assets were $10,010,000 and current liabilities were $2,686,000 at the end of 1936.

The company's existing sulphur deposits in Texas and Louisiana are estimated to be sufficient for twenty-five years. In addition, the company is continually prospecting for new reserves, and this year acquired an option on sulphur land in Utah.

In considering the company's outlook a major consideration is the rate of taxes on mining of sulphur deposits. Both Texas and Louisiana raised taxes in 1936. Sulphur prices, unchanged for eleven years, were raised recently—a favorable development.

Capitalization of the company consists of 12,301 shares of 6 per cent $100 par convertible preferred and 796,372 shares of $10 par common stock.

The common stock dividend rate, cut to $1 a year at the beginning of 1935, will be restored to the $2 annual basis of 1932-'34 with payment of 50 cents on Sept. 1. Dividends amounted to $3.25 in 1931, and $5 in 1930.

The common deserves a good rating. The preferred is high grade.

STEEL OUTPUT SAGS AS PLANTS MAKE REPAIRS

Steel ingot production last week was estimated yesterday by the magazine Steel at 81 per cent of capacity, compared with 84 per cent the preceding week. A rise of half a point in the Chicago operating rate to the highest point of the year at 86.5 per cent, and increases of 7 points to 84 per cent at St. Louis, 4 points to 93 per cent at Cincinnati, and 10 points in New England to 75 per cent, were more than offset by declining at other points.

The Pittsburgh rate dropped 3.5 points to 79.5 per cent, eastern Pennsylvania, 4 points to 65; Youngstown, 5 points to 73; Wheeling, 4.8 points to 89.2; Cleveland, 5.5 points to 79.5, and Detroit, 5 points to 95 per cent of capacity. Buffalo at 86 per cent and Birmingham at 96 per cent were unchanged.

Part of the decline in operations was due to shutdowns in several plants for repairs to equipment which has received unusually severe treatment this year, Steel said. Operations now are more nearly normal for this season than during the early part of this month and in July.

HIGHER COSTS CUT EARNINGS OF JEWEL TEA

The Jewel Tea company, retail food concern, yesterday reported a sharp decline in net earnings for the 28 weeks ended July 17. For this period earnings were $767,074, or $2.74 a common share, against $875,851, or $3.15 a share, in the corresponding 1936 period. The smaller earnings came in the face of a spurt in sales to $12,387,736 in the period this year from $10,600,767 in the 1936 period, an increase of 16.86 per cent.

M. H. Karker, president, attributed the lower earnings this year to rising costs of raw materials and increased expenses, particularly wages and taxes. The proportion of the sales dollar which goes to government and workers is increasing and may be expected to increase further, Karker asserted.

Taxes paid or accrued during the first 28 weeks of this year were $542,450, against $460,079 in the like weeks of 1936, an increase of 17.90 per cent, it was said. Social security taxes alone cost $82,665.

The report also showed that net income for the 53 weeks ended July 17 this year was $1,685,322, or $6.02 a share, a decline from the $1,807,350 or $6.45 a share earned in 52 weeks ended July 11, 1936.

U. S. TO SPEND $10,000,000 BUYING DUST BOWL LAND

Washington, D. C., Aug. 22.—(AP)—Government land experts had $10,000,000 today to buy barren acres in the "dust bowl" and other farm areas. On the land they hope to grow grass that eventually will hide the scars of drouths and "black blizards." One of the final acts of congress was to provide $20,000,000 to begin a farm tenacy program. Half the funds were earmarked for purchase and improvement of submarginal lands.

Officials at the agricultural department said that Secretary Wallace would announce details of this land purchase program shortly and that most of the funds expended in the next year would go to the "dust bowl area" in the southwest.

M. L. Wilson, undersecretary of agriculture, said department officials "hope the whole great plains area will move in the direction of shifting from cultivated land to grazing land." Wilson told congress that $10,000,000 would permit purchase of 2,100,000 acres in the first year at about $3.50 an acre, and enable the government to start regrassing it.

ILLINOIS CENTRAL JULY EARNINGS SHOW DECLINE

Net operating income of the Illinois Central system for July was $830,416, a decline of $377,255 from July, 1936, the railroad reported yesterday. July operating revenues totaled $9,109,296, a decrease of $298,264 from July, 1936. For the first seven months of 1937, net operating revenue was $7,671,702, an increase of $521,828 over the total for the like 1936 period. The 1937 period included a credit of $1,750,289 for retirement taxes which had accrued under the 1935 retirement act. Seven months operating revenues totaled $65,689,528, an increase of $2,614,324 over the 1936 period.

Everyday Economics

Railroad Investment.

According to the Association of American Railroads the total property investment in class one railways of the United States amounted to $25,714,360,369 at the close of 1935. This figure was well below the peak of $26,354,286,261 in 1930.

The investment in road and equipment per mile of line amounted to $105,314. This includes not only roadway and tracks, but equipment, stations, engine houses, shops, signals, and all other physical properties of the roads.

Net capitalization, which means the total amount of railway securities, stock and unmatured funded debt outstanding in the hands of the public, amounted to $18,652,000,000, or 73 per cent of the total investment. Of the total, capital stock represented 38 per cent, and funded debt 62 per cent.

War in China Threat to Big British Stake

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 22.—The effect of the Chinese-Japanese war on Great Britain's business in the far east is being watched closely by financiers and industrialists. Great Britain's stake in China is estimated to be worth around 1 billion 250 million dollars, consisting of 1 billion dollars in business investments and 250 millions in government obligations. Of this sum close to 900,000,000 dollars is tied up in Shanghai, where at least 50 per cent of Britain's trade with China is carried on.

Last year Great Britain supplied approximately 11 per cent of China's total imports. While most classes of Britain's industry are represented in the trade, the most important are the iron, steel, machinery, machine tool, chemical, cotton and woolen industries.

Ship Lines Refuse Cargoes.

With the prospect of war developing on a large scale, most British shipping lines serving the far east are refusing to accept cargoes for Shanghai. Meanwhile freight insurance rates to the war zone have been increased to a formidable figure, and Lloyds' underwriters announced that from last Saturday no merchandise would be covered by insurance after being unloaded in China, or before it has been loaded there for export.

The Chinese-Japanese conflict had a depressing effect on the London stock markets last week. Far eastern bonds fell precipitately as hostilities developed. Since the beginning of the month 5 per cent bonds of the Imperial Chinese railways tumbled from 78 pounds 10 shillings [about $392.50] to 55 pounds [about $275].

The Chinese government 5 per cent gold loan of 1912 was equally depresed with a drop from 85 pounds [about $425] to 73 pounds 10 shillings [about $367.50]. Other Chinese bonds and railroad loans declined substantially.

Other Nations Affected.

The extent to which the nations with trading and customs claims in China are likely to suffer if the war is long drawn out was indicated in figures on China's foreign trade for the first five months of this year. Total imports of merchandise amounted to $492,323,000, against $376,634,000 in the same period last year. The excess of imports over exports in the five month period amounted to $94,160,000.

Figures issued by the customs office in Shanghai showed that America was the source of nearly 19.5 per cent of China's imports in the first five months of this year and Japan for about 19 per cent. Germany supplied 14.75 per cent of the total and Great Britain 11.75 per cent.

NEW FINANCING BY U. S. MAY RUN OVER BILLION

Plan Details Are Due Next Week.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 22.—(AP)—Fiscal officials said today that the government's September borrowing may approximate 1 billion 200 million dollars.

A 1 billion 170 million dollar financing operation will be necessary to meet note and discount bill maturities Sept. 15. Authorities said the aggregate borrowing may be confined to meeting these maturities and providing about $30,000,000 of new cash. They stated that no decision has been reached as to the type of obligations to be issued. This probably will be decided next week.

Builds Cash Balance.

The treasury, through weekly issues of $50,000,000 in bills, has been building up its cash working balance steadily for the last six weeks. Another $50,000,000 issue will be sold tomorrow.

These issues have been necessary largely because of the treasury's gold sterilization policy, which provides for the purchase of gold with borrowed money. The policy is designed to maintain stable credit conditions.

Since this fiscal year began July 1, gold acquisitions have totaled $209,000,000, or about $4,000,000 a day.

A 37 Billion Debt.

Rather than borrow any substantial sum in September to finance future gold purchases, officials said, the treasury probably will rely on week-to-week bill issues. In this way, they said, the treasury could borrow up to about $600,000,000 in anticipation of March income tax receipts. It also could coördinate borrowing closely with gold inflows.

Standing close to the 37 billion level at present, the public debt will be carried above this figure by the $50,000,000 bill issue tomorrow.

War Increases Japanese Use of Panama Canal

[Copyright: 1937: By the New York Times.]

BALBOA, C. Z., Aug. 22.—Cargoes through the Panama canal to Japan showed a sudden increase last week, probably as a result of the conflict with China. In two days eight ships, all from United States ports, passed through to the Pacific with 63,148 tons of cargo, largely scrap metals, bar steel, and pig iron.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

By Frank Ridgway

Wheel of Fortune.

August 22, 1937.

THE grain futures wheel of fortune in the wheat pit of the Chicago Board of Trade stopped on a winning number for THE TRIBUNE farms at noon Saturday when September wheat closed at $1.05⅝ a bushel, adding $37.50 to the farms' $500 marginal fund. The closing price is 3⅜ cents a bushel under the contract price of $1.08¾ a bushel which the farms agreed to take for 1,000 bushels of wheat to be delivered next month.

Whether the farms finally win or lose on the wheat deal will not be actually determined until some time in September when the transaction will be closed. The lower the futures market goes the more they will make on the contract.

Rain on the Farm.

The Wheaton farm got its share of the "million dollar rain" that fell in northern Illinois the latter part of last week. Thirsty crops in the fields, plots, and pastures were revived by the rain.

Some of the corn was badly blown down by the wind, especially the tall stalks growing on rich soil in the test plots. Corn in the two plots, produced from seed brought here from foreign countries, was badly bent by the windstorm. South African and Argentine corn, planted on June 22, is now about seven feet tall.

Although planted late, both of these foreign varieties are making an excellent showing. They were not seriously affected by the recent dry weather. Tassels are beginning to show up in the South African corn plot. The Argentine corn is somewhat earlier; ears are beginning to come out on a few stalks. The caretakers think there is a chance that the Argentine corn will mature ears before the first killing frost. If killing frost appears somewhat late this fall the South African corn may mature ears.

Indian Corn Shoots Up.

Men at the plots declare they can hear the Indian corn growing since the rain. Some of the stalks are ten feet tall, although the corn was not planted until June 16. Tassels are out all over the plot and a few ears are shooting. Some of the stalks have two ears. This corn may mature. The kernels are red, white, and blue.

Since the last big rain the gardeners are hopeful that the chia [salvia hespatica] plants will remain green and produce a crop of oil bearing seed before the first killing frost. The plants now average about 3 feet 10 inches in height; the stand is thick and the foliage is heavy. The crop apparently is able to withstand dry, hot weather. Few of the plants were injured in the recent hot spell.

INTEREST ON CITY BANK DEPOSITS CEASES TONIGHT

Washingon, Aug. 22.—(AP)—Officials said today that banks insured with the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation must cease making interest payments on demand deposits of states, municipalities and other public agencies at midnight tonight.

Congress failed to act on a bill to extend the Aug. 23 deadline for such interest payments. The bill reached the house calendar last week but never was called up for action.

Several states have laws compelling state fiscal officers to deposit funds with institutions which will pay interest on them. Although saying this requirement will cause "some confusion," FDIC authorities asserted that in most cases public funds could be placed with banks as time deposits. The no-interest requirement does not apply to time deposits.

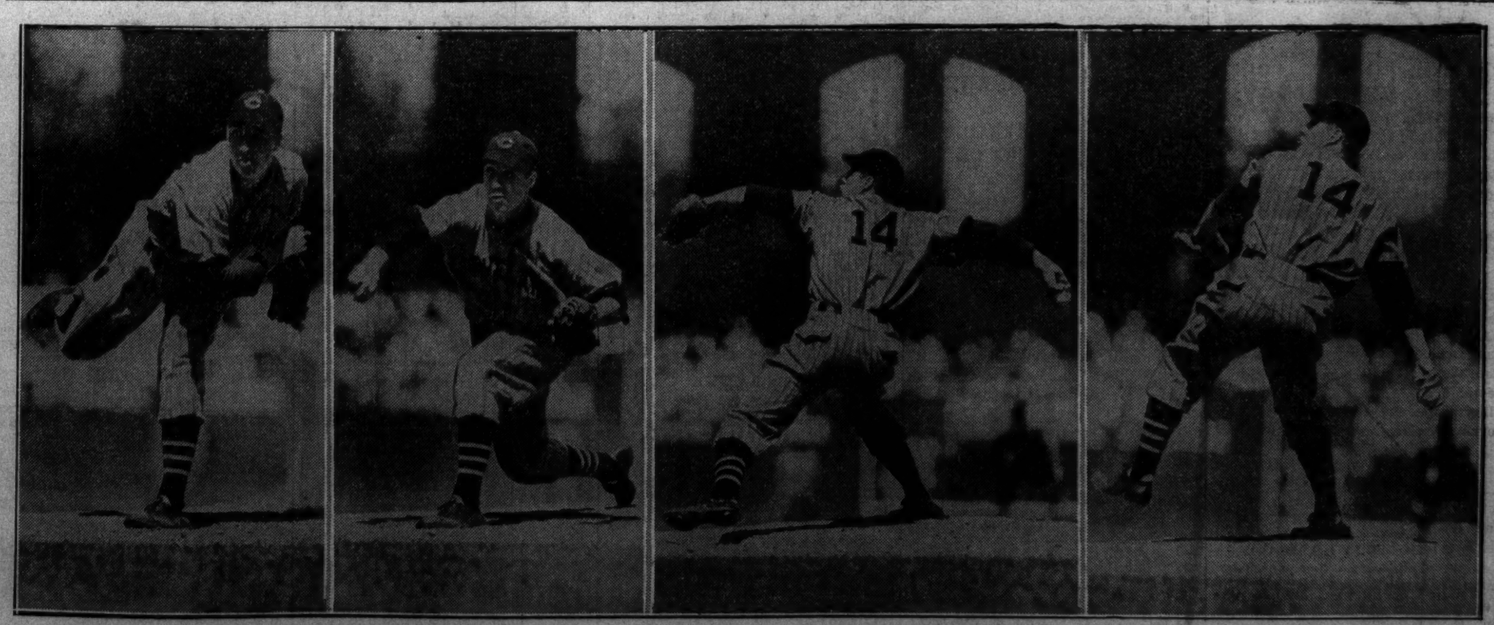
BOB FELLER SHOWS WHITE SOX NEW PITCHING DELIVERY—THEY LIKE IT



Bob Feller, boy wonder of the American league last year at 17, as he pitched for Cleveland Indians against the White Sox in his first appearance at Comiskey park. An injured arm has kept Feller out of the game most of this season, but 32,000 fans went to see him yetserday. He showed the crowd his new pitching delivery, patterned after that of the famous Walter Johnson and calculated to ease strain on arm. The new delivery, shown above, didn't work, as he was wild, issuing seven bases on balls in first two innings. The Sox won, 5 to 2.
